Aerial Bootlegging
Mammalian Civilization
Same Old Issue
Lions Eat Monkeys

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1922, Star Company.)

A flier landed near Croton on Hudson with a Montreal newspaper of the day before and 200 bottles of whiskey. The whiskey was smashed in a forced landing. The aerial bootlegger vanished in a waiting automobile. The police announced an aerial smuggling route. The difficulty is that such routes are unlimited in their possibilities. You cannot police the air of the earth's surface everywhere. It makes suppression of traffic in whiskey seem impossible—since it pays so well. For every short flying trip the flier could make a thousand dollars. Who would have predicted, twenty years ago, absolute prohibition in this country and flying machines defeating it?

The "Mammalogists" met in the great Museum of Natural History yesterday. These scientists care only for animals that are mammals from man down to the spinning mouse, smaller than your finger, and up to the elephant and whale. The mammal nurses its young, feeding it with milk manufactured in the mother's body. Without that nursing there could have been no close companionship of mother and child, no mother love, or family or civilization. Helpless infancy dependent on the mother was necessary to develop moral nature. You cannot blame Mr. Bryan for refusing to believe that so important a development was left to the accident of evolution.

There is a difference between Democrats and Republicans. Republicans know what the people want, although they may not always do it. Democrats of the brand recently in power neither know nor do what the nation wants.

For instance, the Republicans knew enough to win their last big election on the anti-League of Nations fight.

Once elected they ignored what they knew and mixed up in the four-power treaty.

Now another election approaches. Mr. Hughes refuses the Allies' invitation to a conference at The Hague. Good old Hughes! The Allies thought that magic word would surely do the trick, but it didn't. The Republicans want to make their fight again this Fall on a "no foreign entanglement issue," and will point to their Genoa and Hague refusals.

Lions, monkeys, leopards left Africa on the ship Dromore Castle and landed in America yesterday. Of seven monkeys put on board in Africa only three came ashore. Four were killed to feed the lions and leopards on the way over. A good reporter mourns man's ingratitude butchering faithful, meek friends to feed savage monsters. But that has been history from the beginning. The faithful, hard-working and humble have been sacrificed to the arrogant and savage. It's as old as Cheops or Uncle Tom.

Stone, head of the Locomotive Engineers, says prohibition is good, and even bad bootlegging whiskey is good, for, says he, "It kills off the parasites in the leisure class." Unfortunately, as a rule, the leisure class parasites have old-fashioned whiskey of pre-Volstead days stored away and do not drink the wood alcohol, more deadly kind. In the long run, however, those that perish by bootleg whiskey are easily spared. Providence allows few wholesale mistakes.

What would you say if you had to write a paragraph with a sound moral about the following incident: On the Geneva, N. Y., golf course, very early yesterday morning, a man was practicing long, low drives. And a robin was catching early worms. He rose with one struggling worm, a swift golf ball hit him and killed him. The worm escaped. Evidently if everybody gets up early, worm, bird and golfer, there is no especial advantage in it.

Mrs. Mary Pike died in New Hampshire yesterday 106 years old. Her life began in 1816. What was the most important event in that stretch of years? A majority would answer probably, "The Great War," and the answer would be wrong. The development of the railroad was infinitely more important than that war—also the development of the flying machine, telephone, wireless and radio. Those things will be important when our "Great War," as we call it, will be forgotten with other brutal attempts of the human races to find their balance.

Mary Pike saw the development of man's industrial, scientific and mechanical powers. The next 100 years may see a return to intellectual development, alone really important. The industrial and mechanical are important only as they contribute to intellectual development. It is an insult to science when electricity is used to kill a murderer or haul bowling mobs to a prize fight.

General Pei-Fu, impressed by prohibition in America, sent a

PLACES ARE FILLED BY PUPILS

Girls Take Charge of Classes When Three Women Fail to Report

Westport, May 17.—School pupils struck for Principal H. Eugene Cox. Today they taught for him.

Mr. Cox was reinstated following a two days' strike of pupils, who refused to open a school book until the teacher they liked was taken back.

He came back to school today only to learn that three assistant women teachers had failed to appear in class.

Two girl pupils immediately arose and offered their services. They were accepted and taught today just as loyally as they had struck for the last two days.

The teachers' strike added a new twist to the school tangle that has put the little town of Westport on newspaper front pages from Maine to Bridgeport.

Today Misses Alice Macomber, primary grade teacher; Theda Pease, instructor in commercial studies, and Dorothy Chase, assistant to Principal Cox, failed to report for duty.

Two of their places were taken by Doris Wilcox, sixteen-year-old high school pupil, and Hazel Tripp, sixteen years old. Mr. Cox denied himself an assistant, teaching her classes himself.

When it was announced yesterday that Principal Cox would be reinstated it was understood Miss Chase and Miss Pease would continue with their classes. It was learned, however, that they were seen in consultation with Mrs. Edward W. Burt, wife of the School Board chairman who brought difficulties between the board and the principal to a head and who resigned following the principal's reinstatement.

If Above 6 Feet, 2 Inches, Get Your Beds to Order

Washington, May 17.—If you are over six feet two, you'll have to have your bed made-to-order, like your clothes.

This is the standard length just fixed for bedsteads, springs and mattresses by the manufacturers' conference called by the Department of Commerce.

Bed, spring and mattress industries of this country produce $100,000,000 of sleeping equipment a year, says the department.

AUTO RACER AVERAGES TWO MILES A MINUTE

Los Angeles, Cal., May 17—Jimmy Murphy, Los Angeles automobile race driver, negotiated two laps on the Beverly Hills speedway at an average speed of 120.3 miles an hour, according to six stop watches which timed him. Officials of the speedway declared it was the first time a two mile per minute gait had ever been made on a circular course. The car is the one Murphy intends to drive in the Indianapolis speedstakes on Decoration Day.

BANKER BELIEVES U. S. SHOULD CANCEL DEBTS

Washington, May 17 (By International News Service).—Cancellation of the $11,000,000,000 foreign debt to the United States as the "shortest road back to prosperity" was advocated today before the annual convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce by John Ross Delafield, international banker, of New York.

SENTENCES MOTHER OF FOUR TO JAIL TERM

Mrs. Mary Fradel of Salutation street, North End, mother of four children, was sentenced today by Judge Wentworth to serve two months in the House of Correction after she had been found guilty in Municipal Court of selling a pint of liquor to Sergeant Sullivan of the Hanover Street Station. She appealed.

FIRM OWES $33,000 TO GIRL

Names of Many Women on Books of Suicide Haskell's Closed Concern

New light was shed on the suicide of George A. Haskell, head of the brokerage firm that bore his name, today when it was disclosed that the names of several Boston women appeared on the books of the company as speculators, while in realtiy they may have had no accounts.

The names of employes of the firm were added to this list of customers. Whether or not their accounts were legitimate is to be determined.

The day before Mr. Haskell hanged himself in the reception hall of his Somerville residence his private secretary, Miss Anna D. Lakeman of Danvers, was discharged by the receiver. The books now disclose an account crediting her with $33,000.

No question is raised of the honor and integrity of Mr. Haskell in his transactions. In fact, it was emphasized by Receiver Jordan today that creditors had expressed willingness to tide him over his crisis, but that his highly sensitive nature and his nervous and mental breakdown, due to worry, drove him to suicide.

A Boston woman did not know until she received formal notice from the authorities that her name appears in the list of creditors for a substantial sum.

Inquiry showed that her husband had been speculating in her name and had never taken her in his confidence.

A daughter of Thomas W. Lawson, Mrs. Marion Lord(wife of James F. Lord, is a creditor with a claim of $2,000.

STILL OTHER WOMEN

The names of other women stock speculators will appear on the list which Receiver Robert A. Jordan must file with the court some time before Saturday, May 27.

The fact that Miss Lakeman, one of the office staff, had invested so liberally, proved a distinct surprise to her associates. She had been in the employ of the brokerage firm of Allen, Arnold & Co., which the George A. Haskell Company absorbed.

She had worked as telegraph and telephone operator, stenographer and later was given the position of order clerk at a salary larger than many of the more prominent male employes received.

When asked if the books of the firm revealed how Miss Lakeman, an employe, happened to invest so heavily, Receiver Jordan said:

"We have not taken up Miss Lakeman's claim yet. We are first

Married to a bigamist.

Will beautiful Winifred Hudnut Valentino plead with Will Hays, chief of the moving-picture industry, to spare her handsome film actor husband?

Boston film fanettes were asking this question today when news was received that Mr. Hays was watching developments in the Rudolph Valentino-Winifred Hudnut marriage.

Mr. Valentino, handsome, dark-eyed Italian actor, whose romantic work on the screen has won him a place in the hearts of thousands of women, is threatened with the fate of "Fatty" Arbuckle and Peggy Joyce—banischment from the films.

Mr. alentino married Miss Hudnut, daughter of the famous New York perfumer, in Mexicali, Lower California. He failed to respect California law by waiting for his interlocutory decree of divorce from Jean Acker, film acress, to become final, making him, Los Angeles judges charge, liable to arrest and criminal prosecution on a charge of bigamy.

Just where Valentino and his bride are honeymooning isn't known.

What action Chief Hayes will take is being eagerly awaited.

If he bars Valentino, what will Winifred do?

ASSAILS ATTEMPT TO APPEAL 'L' PUBLIC CONTROL ACT

In the wake of Martin M. Lomasney's vitriolic attack upon Mayor James M. Curley, B. Loring Young, Speaker of the House, today launched a broadside at Boston's mayor.

He based his attack on Mayor Curley's scheme to repeal the Elevated public-control act, charging that the only benefit to be derived from such action would be to turn the Elevated back into the "old gang that Curley has already accused of bribery, corruption and of looting the road."

The old Elevated gang would not only get the road back, the Speaker declared, but they would get the millions of dollars the car-riders have spent to buy new cars and equipment to upbuild the road.

He declared the old Elevated gang would be enabled to charge any fare they wanted, and instead of getting an annual dividend of 5½ per cent., as provided by the public control act, they would be able to get a yearly dividend of 7, 8 or even 9 per cent.

LOSE $4,000,000.

The cities and towns would lose the $4,000,000 loaned to the Elevated, Young asserted, and the people would also lose their right to buy the valuable property for the amount of cash actually paid in by Elevated stockholders.

Speaker Young charged that Curley's cry of "corruption" and "fraud," is a verbal smoke screen to cover up his campaign promise to restore the five cent fare.

He charged the Mayor with having ignored all the invitations of the Legislature to come forward with any specific recommendations he might have to reduce the fare.

He declared that every move made by Mayor Curley in his attempt to repeal the act would result to the benefit of the old private owners of

GRILL GUNMAN ON BREWSTER MURDER

Frank Tartagalia, eighteen years old, alleged leader of the Wilmington bandit gang, captured after a thrilling battle with policemen on the Porter street bridge, East Boston, was grilled today by Boston and Winchester police officers in an effort to connect him and his band with the murder on the night of April 15 of Ralph W. Brewster, ticket agent at the Winchester railroad station.

The police hope to link Tartagalia's band with the murder through new the Elevated and would jeopardize the best interests of the people.

REPUDIATES MAYOR.

In the course of his speech, Speaker Young read an opinion from Attorney-General Allen that the courts are without power to set aside an act of the Legislature on the ground of corruption or fraud.

Allen's opinion was a repudiation of the Mayor's statement that Allen had informed him the opinion would be favorable to the Mayor.

Allen held that the courts are without power to impugn or pass upon the motives of the Legislature. Young said he was glad of the opinion because if the courts were ever given the power to overstep the legislative acts, passed by the men elected by the people, "Democracy would be at an end and we would live under judicial autocracy."

Speaker Young arose to ask the House to reject Mayor Curley's order, which sought the opinion of the Attorney-General as to whether the law could be set aside if bribery and corruption existed.

DENIES CORRUPTION.

"By the adoption of that order," he said, "the House would assume that the Legislature of 1918 was composed of grafters and bribe-takers.

"I assert and believe there was no bribery and corruption in the passage of the Elevated act of 1918. A few men who had little regard for the dignity of their public office attempted to make a few dollars themselves in speculation.

"But there is not one trace of evidence which implicates in fraud and corruption the general membership of the House of Representatives, the newspapers of Massachusetts or the leaders of the business world who advocated the passage of the law.

And where in Massachusetts is the man rash enough to accuse Governor Samuel W. McCall of approving a bill tainted with crime, bribery and corruption?

"Mayor Curley is insincere. His only contribution to the discussion has been the cry of fraud and a demand that the act of 1918 be set aside. If he has knowledge of bribery and corruption, let him go to the district attorney and the Grand Jury of Suffolk County.

GIVEN DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

"It is true that a handful of members of the General Court of 1918, expecting that Elevated securities would increase in value, bought some stock.

"The Legislature of 1921 instituted and carried through the most thorough and far-reaching investigation ever held in this State. Every living member of the 1918 Legislature was summonsed to the witness stand.

"No evidence at all appeared of wholesale bribery, corruption and fraud and I do not recall that Mayor Curley assisted that investigation in any way. A transcript of all the evidence was sent to District Attorney Pelletier in May, 1921.

"That evidence has been before the District Attorney of Suffolk County for twelve months. It is before him today."

Young said if the Legislature had not acted in 1918 the Elevated would have gone to the wall and the people would have been deprived of street railway service when transportation was so necessary to win the war.

WOULD HAVE VOTED FOR IT.

He quoted Sherman L. Whipple, Mayor Curley's attorney, as saying that if he had been a member of the Legislature at that time he doubtlessly would have voted for the bill, and he quoted Mayor Curley as saying that the public trustees are honest, competent men, of whom Boston can expect much. Young said the public is running the road better than it ever was run by the old private managers.

The speaker pointed out that six cents out of every ten goes to the cost of labor alone on the Elevated, and he continued:

"Does Mayor Curley wish the company to escape all taxes legally payable to the United States, the Commonwealth and the city of Boston. Does he wish to let the property run down hill again, with inadequate and unsafe cars, defective tracks and poor service?

"Would he set aside nothing for depreciation? Would he suspend the paying of rent for the subways and tunnels to the city of Boston, now amounting to $1,500,003 a year?

"If so, and if, like a magician, he could escape those obligations, where still is the five-cent fare?

"Does he want to reduce the wages of the motormen, conductors and other employes and force them back to the starvation wages of 1912?

"Assume for argument that the act of 1918 were rescinded by mutual consent. The property would then return to the stockholders and directors of the Boston Elevated. The people have shouldered the burden for four years. The property has been built up and replenished. In four years, $8,000,000 has been set aside for depreciation.

"Now comes Mayor Curley and says let us turn this property back to the old private management whom Curley accuses, not merely of mismanagement and inefficiency, but of criminal bribery and corruption. He would have them and not the people of Massachusetts control the Elevated.

"The result would be a 10-cent fare or whatever fare is necessary to pay the cost of service. There would be no limit. The stockholders would benefit by an increased dividend, but Mayor Curley has been unable to show where the people would benefit by his scheme.

"The Elevated will be ready by July 1 to pay back $500,000 to the cities and towns and the balance will undoubtedly be paid in two years. The cities and towns have loaned $4,000,000, but if the act were repealed the people could go whistle for their money.

"The State has absolute control of this property. By the 1918 act they can take this property for the price actually paid in by the stockholders. Mayor Curley's plan would lose this right to the people, and everyone knows that if the people ever wanted to take it over they would be obliged that if the people ever wanted to take it over they would be obliged to resort to eminent domain and pay greatly in excess of the capital invested.

"Mayor Curley suggests great benefits to the company, but where is the benefit to the car rider and the taxpayer?

"Many financial interests believe that the people are incapable of business management. They like to discredit public ownership. But I believe the system is being run well, that the present operation is more efficient and businesslike than ever before."

PATROLMAN IS ACCUSED BY WOMAN

Mrs. Isadore Paul of No. 80 Hammond street, Roxbury, today charged she gave Patrolman Harvey B. Yates, colored, two marked $10 bills, which was to protect her from liquor raids.

Yates, attached to the Roxbury Crossing station, denies the allegation. His friends declare he is the victim of a frameup. Yates was closeted with Superintendent Crowley and Captain Michael F. Gallivan at police headquarters.

It was announced no marked money had been found on the accused officer who has been transferred to another beat.

A year ago Mrs. Victoria Douglas of Yarmouth street charged Yates attacked her. He was indicted on a serious charge. The jury trying the case disagreed. Later the indictment was nol prossed. Yates is married, has one child and is a World War veteran.

Mrs. Paul's husband pleaded guilty last week to a charge of illegal possession of liquor and paid a $100 fine. Later Mrs. Paul gave the patrolman the marked bills, she said.

Mrs. Paul first complaind to Police Captain Gallivan. Then she was given the two marked $10 bills.

She declared Yates entered a Chinese laundry on his beat, and she said to him: "You're the man who had my husband arrested." Yates replied he didn't know anything about either the arrest or Paul.

The Paul raid was made by the liquor squad.

Following a conference at police headquarters, Captain Gallivan and Yates returned to the Roxbury Crossing station, where the latter was confronted by Mrs. Paul.

The Chinaman later declared Mrs. Paul passed no money to Yates.

Mrs. Paul today refused to discuss her charges against Patrolman Yates, saying in reply to the questions that the whole affair is "my business and no one else's."

Her husband, however, declared the policeman had demanded $100 down and $5 weekly for police protection.

MAN WHO SHOT SUITOR OF EX-WIFE SENTENCED

Wallace Hewey

Worcester, May 17.—Wallace Hewey who shot John Catches, suitor of his divorced wife, and then attempted to take his own life, was sentenced to eighteen months in jail for assault with a dangerous weapon. Hewey was divorced from his wife last March and since that time Catches had been paying his attentions to her. Hewey waited in the doorway of the apartment where Mrs. Hewey lived in Leominster and when Catches came out he fired two shots at the suitor. Then he turned the revolver on himself. They were both taken to the Leominster Hospital and for a time it was feared that they would die.

MAYOR DENIES AX WILL SWING AT CITY HALL

Mayor James M. Curley today positively denied all stories that he was about to begin a wholesale discharge of so-called Lomasney men employed at City Hall. Branding all such rumors and printed stories as untrue, Mayor Curley declared that there would be no wild ax-swinging at City Hall within the next twenty-four hours, nor would any competent employe be discharged from the city payroll. "It is not true that there is to be any decapitation orgy at City Hall," declared the mayor. "I have not given any consideration yet to the question of removals. There is no justification for the removal of competent men."

REPORTS WAR AMONG FLORIDA RUM RUNNERS

Washington, May 17.—Civil war has broken out among Florida rum runners, B. W. Andrews, head of the legal division of the prohibition unit, returning today from Miami, reported to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes. The result is, Mr. Andrews said, that the smugglers are tipping off the enforcement authorities when liquor ships of a rival fleet are expected and many seizures have resulted. Smuggling, Mr. Haynes said, has been reduced more than 50 per

P. A. Murphy Buried

The funeral of Patrick A. Murphy, a veteran city employe and for twenty-five years an usher at the Mission Church, Roxbury, was held today from that church. A requiem mass was said by the Rev. Fr. John Murphy, a son, assisted by Rev. Fr. Charles Hoff and Rev. Fr. Edmund Murphy, another son.

CROOKED ANKLE WORTH $25 AN "ACCIDENT"

Jimmy Valentine outdone.

The man who sandpapered his fingers to subtly play with safe tumblers has a successor.

He is Jacob Itzkowitz, thirty-eight years old, of New York.

Jake, as he is known to police, has a crooked ankle, the bone of which was broken and never properly set years ago.

Jake posed as an auto accident victim for a band of crooks who held auto accident insurance. Jake would sandpaper the ankle raw and be lying an accident victim in dire pain when the insurancec ompany's doctors hurried to the scene of the fake accident. One look at Jake's contorted face and his raw crooked ankle and they settled promptly.

Jake's pay was $25 an "accident."

The men who hired him fleeced insurance companies out of more than $100,000 in several New England States.

Jake was brought back from Montreal by Boston police. He had jumped bail after the fraud was exploded in Boston some months ago. Three of the quartet who jumped bail with Jake have already been arrested, two having been returned to Boston two days ago. They are Bernard Greenwald and Arthur Shupack. Another is under arrest in Pittsburgh. The fourth member is still being sought.

"Jake confessed the whole scheme," said Inspector John F. McCarthy, who brought him back from Canada. "It's the cleverest thing since Jimmy Valentine."

Funeral of Captain Giles

Funeral services for Captain Joseph J. Giles, said to be the first boy born in Somerville, after it became an individual town, a veteran of the Civil War and a former member of the State Legislature, were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Bow street, Somerville. Rev. George S. Butters of Newton, a friend of the captain's, officiated. Captain Giles died at Northfield, Mass.

Connie Talmadge's Husband Will Let Her Go Free

Los Angeles, May 17.—John J. Pialoglou, Greek tobacco and cigarette manufacturer of New York, will not contest the divorce action filed against him here May 9 by Constance Talmadge, motion picture actress, his counsel announced here.

Hupp said a property settlement had been made out of court, but that he was not at liberty to discuss its provisions.

Miss Talmadge charged Pialoglou with cruel and inhuman treatment.

2 PAWNSHOP MEN HELD BY COURT

Louis and Myer Yonofsky, proprietors of pawnshops at Nos. 106 and 160 Merrimack street, West End, were today arraigned in the Municipal Court on the charge of receiving stolen property.

Their arrest followed closely that of Samuel Goldstein, who, the police say, confessed to thirty-five breaks. His pal, Herbert McLean, confessed, the police say, to several more breaks. He alleged he sold his loot to the two pawnbrokers.

The Yonofskys pleaded not guilty and were held in $2,000 for a hearing Monday. Goldstein and McLean were held in $25,000 for ah earing on the same day.

SOUTH END LODGER KILLS SELF BY GAS

The sunshine crept into a shabby room in a lodging house at No. 49 Milford street, South End, this morning and revealed this:

Joseph D. Masterson lying on a bed with a gas tube in his mouth.

He had tired of life.

James Driscoll, a lodger, smelled gas and traced it to Masterson's room. He broke down the door but was too late. Joe had gone.

He left no explanation. He was forty-nine years old.

GIRL GETS TERM FOR FLEECING STORES

Police Claim She Used Society Women's Names to Obtain Credit

Miss Florence L. Collins, an attractive twenty-year-old girl of No. 142 Prospect street, Cambridge, was given an indefinite term in the Sherborne Reformatory today by Judge Wentworth in Municipal Court for fleecing Boston department stores by use of fake charge accounts and worthless checks.

She appealed and was held in $1,000.

Police claimed she had swindled stores out of $800 worth of goods by posing as a charge customer and out of $100 by means of the bad checks. She used the names of Belmont and Back Bay society women in obtaining goods on credit. She had worked for some of these women and displayed their calling cards in establishing identification in some of the stores she visited.

In puassing the bogus checks she used the names of Mrs. Louise Hamlett, prominent Boston and Gloucester society matron; Mrs. Ruth Pardivel of Commonwealth avenue and Miss Catherine Patricks of Belmont.

Police allege she had been operating several weeks before trapped by the mutual protective association of the department stores.

Several hundred dollars' worth of the alleged loot was found by the police in the young woman's Cambridge apartments.

WILL HEAR COMPLAINTS OF DISABLED SOLDIERS

A conference that will bring to a head, it is believed, the complaints of American Legioners that disabled men are not being properly cared for will be held in New York tomorrow at the office of Judge Wickersham, at 40 Wall street. Attending will be all of the State department officials of the American Legion in New England and New York, Colonel Charles R. Forbes, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, and Judge Wickersham. Boston men to be present are Senior Vice-Commander William H. Doyle of Malden and Christopher J. Halligan of Dorchester, chairman of the Massachusetts State rehabilitation committee.

A Rose-leaf Complexion

It may seem too much to claim for any soap—that it not only clears and softens the skin—

But that it helps put lovely color into dull or pale cheeks.

Yet that is what Lifebuoy does.

Lifebuoy does it because it is the only soap ever made that wakes the cells and starts a healthy circulation in the skin. That is the whole secret of a rose-leaf complexion.

Lifebuoy's health principle has made over the whole idea of caring for the skin.

ALLSTON GIRL THREATENED TO KILL 2 MEN UNLESS PAID $500

CONFESSES WRITING LETTER

June Reynolds Jailed for Note to Brother of Man She Calls "Betrayer"

June Matilda Reynolds, who attempted suicide in a Back Bay house several weeks ago, confessed to the Boston American today that she attempted to blackmail George Grimes of the Hotel Westminster.

She was arrested for attempted extortion at No. 1426 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, and made her confession while in the Charles street jail.

George Grimes is the brother of Daniel Grimes, a restaurateur of Manchester, N. H., and the man she blamed for her attempted suicide.

She admitted that she wrote to George Grimes demanding $500 and threatening to kill him and his brother if they did not pay her, adding she would end her own life as well.

DEMANDED $500.

In the letter, dated May 11, she wrote:

If you give me $500 I won't trouble you any more. If you don't give it to me, I'll kill myself and your brother Dan. If you tell the police about it, I'll do the same to you.

From her cell with tear-dimmed eyes the girl who charges Daniel Grimes ruined her life, cried out:

I didn't mean to write anything so foolish as that. Yes, I wrote the letter. I couldn't stand to let them get away scot free after what I have suffered. I did it in a moment of weakness. How I have suffered.

CHARGES BETRAYAL.

I became an employe of Dan in his Manchester restaurant when I was sixteen. I'm now twenty. A few weeks and Dan declared his love. I was young and I trusted Dan Grimes. I loved him, and I love him still. He lavished affection and money upon me. I traveled all over the country. And then several months ago he cast me adrift, despite my love for him and as I always thought, his love for me.

He refused to marry me. Then I realized I had been robbed of my honor by a man, now forty-two years old.

Before I attempted suicide George Grimes offered me $500 if I would go West. I said I didn't want money. I wanted Dan. I still want him. I want him to do the right thing, that's all.

Miss Reynolds declared it was the first time she had ever been in jail or under arrest. She begged that someone furnish $500 bail. The few friends she did know in Boston had been unable to arrange for her release, she said.

SAYS SHE IS ONE OF GANG.

She will be formerly arraigned in Municipal Court tomorrow.

Daniel Grimes declared today that the arrest of Miss Reynolds was the outgrowth of a long standing attempt to blackmail him and his brother George. Daniel came to Boston yesterday to confer with his brother. Formal complaint was then made against the girl.

The restaurant man charges the Reynolds girl is but one of a gang of blackmailers, whom he and his brother are investigating.

George Grimes, refused to either affirm or deny the girl's charges, or make any comment on her arrest. "It's nobody's business," he said.

Miss Reynolds was arrested in a private home at No. 1426 Commonwealth avenue, where she had been living with Miss Ellen Stowe since her discharge from the City Hospital.

JUNE MATILDA REYNOLDS

Confesses after arrest that she threatened George Grimes of the Hotel Westminster and his brother Daniel, of Manchester, N. H., with death if they did not pay her $500

CHARGES STATE HEADS LOBBY

Charges that high-salaried State Department chiefs have organized a lobby and are deluging the Legislature with all sorts of distorted propaganda to save their official heads from being chopped off by the economy axe were made today by Representative Bernard Early of Newton to the Joint Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature.

Representative Early, who is chairman of the legislative Committee on State Administration, appeared in support of the economy recommendations made by the special commission appointed by Governor Cox to cut down State expenses. One of the recommendations was for the creation of the office of State purchasing agent.

"Some of the high paid departments heads attended the hearings and made notes of the remarks intended to kill the bills," said Early. "They then spread the rumors and false charges among the State employes under them.

"It has come to a pretty pass when employes can come forward in large numbers and intimidate the lawmakers.

"These department heads have been active against economy bills. They have lobbied against them. They have tried to kill them. They have told their employes that the net result would be to cut their pay.

"There is a large number of employes loafing in the State House corridors and not doing enough work to justify their being on the payroll. And there is a considerable group largely underpaid."

VIOLIN HELD IN BANK VAULT PENDING SUIT

Title to a Guanarus violin, valued at $650, is involved in a suit filed by Miss Helen Hood of Brookline against Mrs. Ida Di Natale, widow of the late Joseph Di Natale of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Miss Hood alleges that she made a conditional sale of the violin to Di Natale, but he paid her only $400, and so violated the conditions. She wants to pay Mrs. Di Natale $400 and get the instrument back. The violin is in the Massachusetts Trust Company vault, and Judge Sisk of the Equity Motion Session of Superior Court has ordered that it remain there until title is decided on.

checking up the smaller claims. Therefore I cannot say anything definite on that score."

It was pointed out by other employes of the firm that it was not unusual for investors to conceal their operations by investing through some chosen representative. The suggestion was made that Miss Lakeman, who has long enjoyed the reputation of being a shrewd business woman, may have acted for clients whose names do not appear

SAYS LAWSON OWES.

Of equal interest to the disclosures relative to women investors today was the positive statement by Receiver Jordan that Thomas W. Lawson, author of "Frenzied Finance" and "Friday the 13th," was indebted to the defunct firm.

This was in direct contradiction to Mr. Lawson, who denied that he owned a penny to George A. Haskell & Co. Mr. Lawson made this assertion at a recent meeting of the creditors.

"In spite of Mr. Lawson's claim," said Receiver Jordan today," we state that he is indebted to the firm, but to what amount I cannot state definitely at this time.

"The firm of George A. Haskell & Company, and that of Allen Arnold & Company, which preceded it, sold much stock for Mr. Lawson and his interests and the indebtedness is for commissions. Whether it will amount to $500 or $5,000 I cannot state until our examination is complete.

"Mr. Haskett was a physical and mental wreck, due to worry. Others on the street had succeeded in bridging much worse financial gulfs, but he was too sensitive and too alert to the losses of his clients.

"On the Saturday before his suicide we filed a petition with the Federal Court for permission to transfer certain stock. It was purely a technical matter. As the petition was not filed until rather late on that half day it became necessary to await a judge on Monday.

WORRIED BY DETAILS.

"This delay troubled Mr. Haskell. He called me and others up repeatedly on Saturday night and Sunday. He said he felt the court's failure to act on the transfer was a reflection on the company.

"Sunday he killed himself. On Monday the petition went through. He might have lived and recovered from this setback.

"As it was, Mr. Haskell's firm was ready to pay back a very handsome margin, at least forty cents on the dollar and as matters progress, we may guarantee more. I think the total liabilities will not exceed $171,000."

Mr. Haskell's career on the street was pathetic. He had toiled hard and was dependable, according to business associates of long standing. He had acted as confidential man for many State street concerns.

The new firm was only a week old when Haskell committed suicide. Haskell's individual losses in a week totaled $50,000.

WINS BATTLE TO REMAIN IN AMERICA

Pretty sixteen-year-old Mary B. Brown, the Irish heroine, has won her fight against deportation, and today is with her aunt, Mrs. Haynes, No. 380 Athens street, South Boston, admitted under a special order from Washington.

When she arrived here on board the Leyland liner Winifredian last April she was ordered sent back to Liverpool because she was unable to pass the reading and writing tests provided by law.

She appealed to Mayor Curley and to Congressman Gallivan to prevent the immigration authorities from carrying out the order of deportation.

And then her story came out. She was a real heroine. The Royal London Humane Society had awarded her a medal and a certificate of merit for saving the lives of two women who were drowning at Fairhill, England.

The Mayor and the Congressman did what they could, but the rules of the immigration service were stiff and Mary was unable to pass the required literacy test.

But while the fight in her behalf was going on she applied herself to study. The matrons and the inspectors at the immigration station aided and today, when the roder came from Washington admitting her to the country, she was able to read the test cards at the station, although some of the words stumped her still.

At the home of her aunt, she said she is going to be given an opportunity to get an education, and will spend the next few months in hard study.

The story of her rescue of the two English women is a real thriller. The women, one of whom was married, were in bathing at Fairhill, an English beach resort, when the undertow seized them and began carrying them out to sea. Mary saw their plight and ignoring her own danger swam out to assist them.

She had a hard struggle to get the first back to safety but managed to do so. Then without waiting she plunged again into the sea and brought out the other, almost dead. She herself was exhausted by her fight with the waves for the lives of the others.

STATE TO INVESTIGATE VONSIATSKY MARRIAGE

Washington, May 17.—Legal documents forwarded by Madame Loubouv Mouromsky of Paris to the Department of Justice, in support of her claim that she is the only legal wife of Anastase Vonsiatsky, the young Polish engineer, who recently married Mrs. Marian Buckingham Ream-Stephens of Chicago, will be forwarded to the attorney-general of New York State, where the marriage took place, as soon as they reach this city.

The plane was piloted by William N. DeWald, accompanied by W. G. Schauffle, Jr., traffic manager of a New York Aircraft Corporation. The plane was scheduled to stop at Mineola, L. I., and then fly to Framingham, Mass.

HUNT TERROR GANG FOR FIRE IN CHICAGO

By International News Service.

Chicago, May 17.—Terrorists who made good their threat to use the torch in the war of certain building trades unions against the Landis wage award were being sought today by the police and every law enforcement agency in Chicago. One of the most gigantic drives against gunmen, bombers, incendiarists and thugs in the history of the city was under way.

Fred Mader

This drive followed the burning of a $500,000 building in the course of construction under the terms of the Landis wage award.

State Attorney Robert E. Crow charged that the fire and recent murders and bombing attributed to the labor war was the work of leaders of the Chicago Building Trades' Council, who sought to bring about a general strike here.

"Labor as a whole has no part in it," Crow said. "It is gang work."

Crow said the heads of the Terrorist gang are "Big Tim" Murphy Fred Mader, president of the Building Trades' Council, and "Con" Shea. Murphy is under sentence to prison for robbing the U. S. mails. Shea and Mader are both ex-convicts.

The three are now under indictment for murder in connection with the slaying of two policemen last week.

HAIR-PULLING WAR BEFORE COURT

A four-cornered hair-pulling contest which came as the aftermath of a separate support case was aired in Municipal Court today when two women were arraigned charged with attacking two of the same sex.

The defendants were Miss Catherine Bickerton of Appleton street, South End, and Mrs. Nora Mitchell of Arcadia street, Revere. They were charged with assault and battery on Mrs. Mabel Boyce and Miss Clara T. Nickerson of Belvidere street, Back Bay.

The trouble followed the recent trial of Mrs. Mitchell's husband on a separate support charge. Mrs. Boyce, a witness in that case, was the star witness for the government today.

"The day Mr. Mitchell was in court for separate support," she testified, "Mrs. Mitchell sat nearby making faces at me. I had to ask a court officer to tell her to stop. After court adjourned I started down the street with Miss Nickerson. Mrs. Mitchell and her friend followed and stopped us.

"The first thing I knew Mrs. Mitchell slapped my face. Then her friend sailed into Miss Nickerson. Then—well, we had to defend ourselves."

The defendants denied the charge and claimed the mixup was started by Mrs. Boyce and Miss Nickerson.

CHICAGO OPERA CO. WANTS TO COME HERE

Held as Gang Leader After a Desperate Fight With Police

FRANK TARTAGLIA.

BANDIT LEADER IS CAPTURED

clews revealed with the alleged bandit leader's arrest.

In East Boston court today Tartagalia was held under $10,000 bonds for trial May 26 on the charge of breaking into Hood's creamery, East Boston, April 28 and stealing a safe containing $200.

Three other members of the gang are already awaiting on this charge under like bonds.

The police seek to connect Tartagalia's band with the Winchester murder by means of an automobile pistol found in Tartagalia's auto the night a squad of officers recently swooped down on the gang's Wilmington rendezvous and corralled three of the outfit.

Railroad detectives today identified this pistol as one stolen from the Woburn railroad station on the night of April 10, five days before the killing of the Winchester agent.

In the Woburn break the robbers carried away a safe containing several hundred dollars in money and the pistol. The number of the weapon was 35984.

The police are now working on the theory that the gang that staged the Woburn holdup planned to rob the Winchester station on the night Brewster was slain. They regard the pistol found in Tartagalia's machine as the strongest bit of evidence yet unearthed in their efforts to unravel the mystery that has so long veiled the Brewster case.

GUNMAN COBB HUNTED.

With Boston inspectors, Railroad Detectives Bartick and Sanborn, who have been working on the Brewster murder since it occurred, visited Tartagalia in his cell after arraignment and subjected him to a third degree in regard to the pistol and the Woburn robbery in an effort to establish possible connection between the Tartaglia gang and the Winchester crime.

In connection with this grilling a redoubled effort to capture Sylvanus Cobb, only missing member of the band still at large, was made. Cobb was with Tartagalia when the latter was overpowered and captured on the Porter street bridge. He managed to make his escape.

A beautiful black-eyed girl known only as Beatrice was also hunted today by police in their efforts to complete the roundup of the gang. This girl is said to be the sweetheart of Cobb. Through tracing her the police hoped to get a line on the present refuge of the much-wanted fugitive.

After Cobb's dash for liberty on the Porter street bridge he calmly repaired the rooms occupied by Tartagalia in East Boston, changed his clothes and then dropped from sight.

DESPERATE STRUGGLE.

Tartaglia was caught after a desperate hand-to-hand struggle with Sergeant James W. Lewis, who gsappled with him and threw him to the pavement while Sergeant John McGrath made a vain effort to halt Cobb and another member of the gang.

ARRESTS AUTO MAN AT POINT OF GUN

Dr. Ruth, U. S. Agent, Tells One Story and R. F. Lopez Another

Objecting to a Federal narcotic agent parking his automobile opposite the Majestic Theatre on Tremont street, at a place granted him as a cab stand, R. F. Lopez, owner of several public autos, was arrested at the point of a gun.

Arraigned in Municipal Court today on a charge of resisting an officer, Mr. Lopez was held in $1,000 and permitted to go on his own recognizance for a hearing Friday.

According to Dr. Irwin C. Ruth of the narcotic squad, he drove his car to Tremont street on official business. Mr. Lopez told him the spot to which he drove was a cab stand.

DR. RUTH EXPLAINS.

The Federal physician offered to move the car a short distance and was told, he says, that was part of the same stand.

Dr. Ruth then explained he was a Federal officer on duty, and must leave his machine there for a short time.

"The man then began shouting he didn't care about any prohibition agents," declared Dr. Ruth. "I explained to him quietly that I was not a prohibition agent, and showed him my badge.

"He continued to express his contempt for Federal agents. I warned him that I would arrest him if he didn't stop. He kept it up, so I drew my gun and arrested him."

U. S. AGENT ACCUSED.

Mr. Lopez says the row started when Dr. Ruth's car struck one of his machines and that, when he protested, Dr. Ruth went to his machine, got his gun and threatened to shoot.

Mr. Lopez says he will make charges against Dr. Ruth and see that they go to Washington.

WOMAN INJURED IN RUNAWAY

A bakery wagon was demolished, one woman injured and scores of other persons endangered during a runaway accident in Quincy square today, which was featured by a chase on the part of policemen in an auto patrol and on motorcycles.

The team driven by Fred L. Belyau, No. 9 Prescott street, Roxbury, bolted while on Granite street. The two horses attached to the wagon dashed straight toward the square, scattering scores of pedestrians on the way. Near the square the runaway swerved close to an automobile owned and driven by Edward O'Neil of Quincy.

O'Neil's wife, seated in the car, jumped in fright as the team came plunging on. She fell, receiving several bruises.

The wagon crashed against the auto and was practically wrecked. The horses, freed, continued wildly toward the square. Meantime officers in the police auto and on motorcycles had taken up the chase.

As the horses raced through the square John Callahan, driver of an oil wagon, pluckily leaped from his seat onto the back of one of the animals. He held it in check until aid came. The other horse plunged on several yards further when it, too, was halted by Arthur Johnson and a motorcycle officer.

Both animals escaped with slight bruises.

LOOT SAFE; TO 'STEAL' POLICE FORCE NEXT

Mansfield Treasurer's Notes Give Combination and Make Thieves' Work Easy

Mansfield, May 17.—Cracksmen broke into the Town Hall today, forced their way into the office of the town treasurer, and, with the aid of a scribbled memorandum of the combination, opened the safe and stole $1,935 in cash of small denomination, made up ready for deposit in the bank today.

Town police and State officers are at work on the case. The robbers left a letter in which they promised to "come back again and kidnap the whole police force."

ROBBERS LEAVE NOTE.

The front door of the hall was damaged by the burglar tools used and a hole had been bored in the door of the treasurer's office. After looting the safe and writing their letter, the thieves left by the rear door, going through the police room.

The robbery was discovered by Town Clerk David Smiley, who notified Chief of Police Thomas H. Nelson. Two State inspectors were called in to aid the local officers.

A letter, carefully picked out on the typewriter, was found still in the machine. It read, in part:

"Gents: Guys that hang around at all hours make us sick. Here we been in this burg since three o'clock waiting for a chance to crack this joint early and get away before we feel sleepy,—its such a sleep dump.

"SAFE A JOKE."

"We've been reading about the burg a lot lately and decided to come here and get ours before it was all taken away. We looked the place over a few days ago before we decided to go to work.

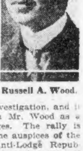
"This old tin safe of yours is a joke. We left our can opener some where, so damned if we didn't have to use a hair pin. Two weeks ago we cracked the railroad safe and got away with nothing but bonds. We don't want no bonds from now on, nothing but kale, especially ones and twos. The other stuff is so hard to get rid of.

"So long. Got to go now, but we'll be back and kidnap your whole police force.

"2 JACKS."

RUSSELL A. WOOD TO OPEN CAMPAIGN TONIGHT

Russell A. Wood, former Representative from Cambridge, will open his campaign for the Republican nomination for United States Senator against Henry Cabot Lodge at 8 o'clock tonight in Faneuil Hall.



Russell A. Wood.

The subject of Mr. Wood's address will be "The Betrayal of a Heritage," dealing with the famous Ford-Newberry contest. Senator Lodge voted to seat Newberry as a member of the United States Senate after a lengthy investigation, and it is this vote which Mr. Wood as a candidate challenges. The rally is conducted under the auspices of the newly-organized Anti-Lodge Republican Club of Massachusetts, of which Mr. Wood is president.

COTTAGE FARM BRIDGE SITE CHANGE OPPOSED

Representatives of Boston and Cambridge appeared before the legislative Committee on Counties today to protest against the proposed change in location of the Cottage Farm Bridge. The new site would run the bridge from Commonwealth avenue to Magazine street. Joseph P. Lyons, assistant corporation counsel, said the change would entail payment of huge damages. Former Mayor Brooks of Cambridge said the new bridge would destroy the Magazine Beach playground

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

By FRIEDA DAVIS

THE FOREIGN element is entering into our films with a vengeance these days. When aerial transportation across the Atlantic becomes a fact and it will be a matter of hours before we can reach England, internationally-made productions will be the order of the day.

Elsie Cohen, who has been in New York for some months studying motion picture making in this country, has decided that she has the proper twist. She is exporting to her country, Holland, a company of American players to make a picture or several pictures for a Dutch concern.

These players include Evelyn Greeley and Carlyle Blackwell, well-known as stars of the old World Production regime, who will sail for Holland next Saturday, with Miss Cohen. The interiors of their first picture are being made in Harlem before sailing, while the exteriors will be taken in France, Austria, and, if possible, Russia. The story is by an American and the directing is in the hands of Oscar Apfel, who has done work here for some time.

Miss Cohen feels that her new method will bring to the productions of her country a large American following. It is in this country, evidently, that the foreign producers find the most money in the return for their efforts. When they make use of some of our own players, then they will doubtless succeed in selling their pictures.

LASKY OFF.

JESSE LASKY, vice president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has set sail for foreign shores with the intention of signing up a few more famous authors to write for his stars. He is accompanied by Mrs. Lasky and Gilbert Miller, general manager of the Charles Frohman concern.

Mr. Lasky has an appointment to meet Vicente Blasco Ibanez, whose story, "Blood and Sand," has just been filmed in Hollywood. They will discuss details of this production. Others who are to be closeted for conferences with this producer are Sir James M. Barrie, Arnold Bennett, Edward Knoblock, Joseph Conrad, Robert Hichens and Rudyard Kipling. In France he will see Andre Rivoire and Henri Duvernois. In Germany he will talk business with Melchior Lenyel, a playwright, and in Austria he will see Arthur Schnitzler and Ernst Klein. Having made a version in the neighborhood of Schnitzler's "Affairs of Anatol"—a very large neighborhood and the picture was an outpost—Mr. Schnitzler may have much to talk about!

German methods of picture production will occupy more than a little of Mr. Lasky's attention while abroad.

SPEAKING OF CONFERENCES

WILLIAM FOX, head of the corporation that bears his name, has decided to confer with an author, too. He will go abroad with his director, Harry Millarde, for the express purpose of talking over the production of "If Winter Comes" with its author, A. S. H. Hutchinson.

Beyond the fact that Fox has the right to this story and that they intend to make a special film of it, who will play the roles of Mark Sabre, Lady Tybar, Mabel, or Effie has not been announced.

THE IDEAL Film Company, Ltd., bought the screen rights to the Clemence Dane play, "A Bill of Divorcement," a short time ago and are now casting about for the proper persons to appear in the production. A young actress, Katherine Cornell, made a distinct hit on Broadway in the "flapper" role of the daughter of the divorced couple. She rose from obscurity to an assured position in matters theatrical overnight.

It is said that Constance Binney is being considered for this role in the film version. To me this seems a remarkable display of blindness. Miss Binney has shown that sometimes she can act very well. She is however, a leading lady, an ingenue, and not a juvenile. Several times we have seen her as a "flapper" and at no time was she convincing. Knowing Miss Dane's play, it seems lamentable that the role of the daughter should not be properly cast. It is a capital role.

LIEUT. PAT COLLINS WAR MEDAL CHAMPION

Lieutenant Pat Collins, a relative of the late former Mayor Patrick A. Collins of this city, is the hero of the 2d battalion of the 5th Regiment, now in barracks at the army base, South Boston.

Pat has more medals and decorations than any man in the regiment. During the war he served in the 26th Division.

Peggy Marsh's Little Boy Given Name of Stepfather

New York, May 17.—After a long, brave fight to establish a place in the world for her little son, Peggy Marsh has won a point. Her husband, Albert B. Johnson, legally adopted five-year-old Henry Anthony Marsh in Surrogate's Court. By the adoption papers, the boy will bear the name of Anthony Field Johnson.

Tony Marsh. (International News Reel.)

The long and unsuccessful fight over the inheritance of little Anthony has occupied the courts in England and the United States for many years. Anthony, the natural son of Henry Field, Jr., claims a right to a share in the Marshall Field estate, besides the $100,000 left to him by his father's will. Peggy Marsh Johnson, with her husband at the "Tent," broke her ankle while dancing and is now in the hospital.

GIRLS ACCUSE YOUTH AND AGED MAN

Taunton, May 17.—Residents of the little village of North Dighton were aroused to fury by revelations following the arrest of a sixty-eight-year-old man and an eighteenyear-old boy.

William Vivian, a factory worker, sixty-eight years old, was arraigned in District Court on charges preferred by a girl of eleven, who is small for her age. Herbert C. Rose, eighteen, was arraigned on a similar charge. They were held for the Grand Jury.

Twelve girls were in court as witnesses and told stories which shocked court attendants. Many of the schoolboys are to be questioned by the authorities before the case is finished. It is hinted some families may be asked to leave the village.

A note tossed from one schoolgirl to another and intercepted by a teacher led to the expose.

WONDERFUL ISCOVERY IN OOD SCIENCE

tamins are foods not drugs —if you take vitamins with your daily foods you will see results and will not need drugs

'HY has one woman the beauty of health and abounding vi- ity, when another, with an almost ual natural physique, seems lack- in charm?

Why has one man masculine ergy, driving will, the power to t and succeed, when another man cks the buoyant strength to in- ence and to hold others?

These old questions have now in rt been answered by science: e epoch-making discovery of tamins!

Now you, too, may hope to glow ith the beauty of health, the charm a clear complexion, a firm and unded figure. Now your husband n hold—or regain—the vigor and ergy of youth;—and your chil- en can grow into attractive men d women.

HE Vitamin Discovery is more im- portant than the discovery of bac- ia, because through vitamin knowl- ge we can fortify every cell of the dy, so that the invading bacteria lose ir power. In the whole field of emistry and medicine, vitamin knowl- ge today is at the center of modern ought.

Thousands of people are already bene- ting themselves. Alonzo Taylor of Hoover Commission cured chil- en in Roumania of eye troubles tend- g to blindness by giving them food ntaining Vitamin A. The British overnment protects and energizes its lers with Vegex, rich in Vitamin . Bellevue Hospital in New York City using this same concentrate in its st difficult cases. Dr. Percy Howe the Harvard School of Dental Re- arch has shown that the cells which ild teeth and bones cannot carry on eir lime depositing work without tamin C.

our Food Makes Your Body

The myriads of cells in your body nnot go outside the food you supply their building materials.

Science demonstrates vitamins by the ysiological powers that they wield er the life process. When abundant food, energy and health result; when ent, death comes in twenty days. d when deficient in foods, as nearly ays today in our artificial living, re results lack of energy and loss youthful vigor, and all that tends disorders of the system and even eases.

At the Center of Life

Vitamins function at the very center the life process—in the central nerv- s system, organs of reproduction and glands that produce the body and onality-regulating messengers, called mons.

Vitamins are present in green grow- cells of leaves and in the sprouting tions of roots. The mother plant yes them in and around the germ and seeds of plants. They are in milk l in the yolk of eggs—wherever Na- e intends to grow new life or start roduction she places vitamins in ndance. From yeast it is possible xtract the soluble proteins, enzymes, cious organic salts and the highly nt Vitamin B into Vegex, a highly centrated delicious food with amaz- powers.

emarkably Quick Results

Nothing in biological science is more unding than the instantaneous effect n the body, especially the glands nervous system, of eating a minute ntity of any right food containing amin B.

mong experiments described in ene Christian's books is one of pig- fed on milled rice and polished ns who starve, and unless relieved proper food die in twenty days of vous disorders. When food contain- the right vitamins is administered, overy is complete within a few hours.

Start to feed your family the ht combinations of foods and will see the results in 3 to 5 ys surely!

The Need of Vitamins

Vitamins are positive construc- forces, therefore—lack of them ses disease.

void drugs, Eat YOUR supply of amins in FOODS.

r Stomach, gestion, , etc. Robert McCarrison of the Royal College of Physicians, London, says: "Vitamin faulty l causes stomach and intestinal dis- ers, vague ill health, nervousness other symptoms that can be pre- ted or overcome, simply by supply- vitamins." In Northern India he nd no appendicitis among the natives ate foods rich in vitamins.

nstipation Without Vitamin B the ganglia and striped scles of the colon lose their power move the bowel content. Constipa- disappears with a properly selected min rich diet.

Amazing Discovery!

Science Shows us A New and Better Way of Living

The day you read this you can begin building strength, nerve reserve and greater vitality.

Learn the truth--Find out what has been proven about Vitamins in the last two years in the laboratories of the great Universities in the practical field of science.

Within three days you will feel the results in greater vigor of manhood, better rounded womanhood.

Every housewife in the United States should learn at once:

How to raise a healthier family.

How to set a better table for less money.

How to give to husband, wife and children new vigor, increase in ambition and energy: doubling—yes doubling the physical and mental capacity.

It is so simple, so tremendously simple to do the right thing.

Nothing more than correct eating, eating foods with vitamins.

At one half the cost, you can serve better meals than ever before, more delicious meals, more appetizing, genuinely richer meals.

This is no exaggeration. It has already been proven.

Madam, if you will select the foods for your family in such a way that the proper supply of vitamins will be on the table at every meal you will be surprised at the change inside of three days.

Eat vitaminous foods and see. See the glow of health in your own face, firmer flesh, rounded figure, freedom from fat.

What are Vitamins?

It is now known that the vitamins are the builders of the human body, while the proteins, carbohydrates, and the mineral salts are the materials. You can take bricks and lumber to an empty yard, but you must have carpenters and brick-layers to build the house. Vitamins are the life in food.

There are several kinds of vitamins contained in different kinds of foods, vitamins A, B, and C, and probably a fourth kind, D, (sometimes treated as a part of A).

Those interested in this new branch of science and its practical value should read the first column on this page. This is an authentic scientific article. It is of importance to every human being living our artificial way.

Vegex—the delicious and richest of vitamin foods

(A FOOD—The builder of nerve and gland power)

An appetizing extract of highest quality yeast—1 lb. from 12 lbs. of yeast

At drug stores and grocer's—

What is Vegex?

Vegex is the purest of pure foods—proteins, fats, and mineral salts made from an especially rich quality of yeast. From twelve pounds of this yeast one pound of Vegex is extracted. This leaves a product that is 35% proteins with fats, and rich, valuable mineral salts for the body—with an enormous concentration of Vitamin B. The objectionable qualities of yeast as a food—its odor and taste and its ferments—have been taken away, leaving a perfectly delicious food.

Vegex is the same substance which under another name was used by the British Government during the war to feed the soldiers who had suffered vitamin starvation.

In Kut in Mesopotamia the British troops had been besieged by the turks for several weeks. The rations consisted of canned foods and white flour. Beri beri, scurvy, and other nutritional diseases had attacked the British troops. The soldiers were incapacitated by thousands. We now know this to have been caused by vitamin starvation.

The British government knew the value of vitamins. It sent seven bombing planes to the rescue of the troops in Kut. These planes did not carry bombs, however. They carried Vegex—(known in England as Marmite)—the vitamin extract richest of all foodstuffs known to science in the precious vitamin B. Small packages of Vegex were dropped over the besieged area. The soldiers ate the Vegex their starved bodies so sorely needed and the lack of which was producing such dreadful results. Within four weeks every trace of the diseases which had threatened their lives disappeared.

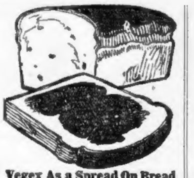
Vegex was also used by the British Government to cure nutritional diseases at Gallippli. In fact, during the period of the war even the American market was entirely drained of all its small supply of Vegex. For the British Government commandeered—not bought—almost the entire world's output. It knew the unique value of Vegex in fortifying against disease and in increasing vitality and health. Now this food, which has saved thousands of lives, is offered to you. Vegex should be in the regular diet of every family.

The British Government Report says: "Vitamin B is necessary to promote growth in children." And Vegex, remember, one pound of which is made from 12 pounds of the richest brewers yeast, is the richest foodstuff in vitamin B known to science. It is a food, not a drug. And it is delicious to taste, can be served in 50 different ways—as a broth, as flavoring in soups, gravies, relishes, as a spread with or without butter on bread

Vegex as a Delicious Drink

A third of a teaspoonful of Vegex in hot water makes a delicious drink, tremendously rich in vitamins. Its refreshing effect on the whole system, especially on the nerves, is noticeable after the briefest use. Drink it as you would tea, or coffee or a broth. It has an unusually appetizing flavor.

Strengthen according to taste; and according to strength it will cost ½c to 1c. a cup! A tiny quantity of Vegex added to soups and gravies gives a delicious flavor.



Vegex As a Spread On Bread

With or Without Butter

A delicious vegetable sandwich that satisfies the craving for meat sandwiches. Whole wheat bread is preferable. But since Vegex is full of Vitamin B concentrate you may if you wish, eat white bread with the spread and get the needed food-constituents.

50 New Dishes

Vegex may be served in 50 ways. As a drink, like tea and coffee, as a sauce, or gravy, in sandwiches with or without butter. These are a few of the delightful new dishes chefs have made from Vegex. With each jar comes a book of recipes. Most people buy Vegex because it is a delicious food, all of us need Vegex because it is richer in Vitamin B than any other food.

Recent dietic science has revealed startling facts. It has been proven there are millions of people only half alive, only half enjoying themselves, living continually in a state of ill health, simply because they are starving for vitamins, soluble proteins, mineral salts and phosphates.

Lack of these essentials in food is largely responsible for listlessness, lack of energy, tired feeling, mental fatigue, indigestion, constipation, gas on the stomach and general debility. Vitamin B has been found necessary even to the building and preservation of sound teeth and bones. Recent experiments have shown these essentials have a direct bearing on practically every phase of life.

Yet in many of our modern foods the life giving essentials have been destroyed. Cold storage, overcooking, canning, contact with metal, and preserving destroys.

Vitamin Content Certified

"Our feeding tests show VEGEX to be the most potent carrier of the water soluble B vitamin we have ever seen. The Christian Vitafood wafers show a higher vitamin potency than milk and many times more potency than baker's yeast. They are particularly rich in the fat soluble A and the water solubles B and C."

(Signed) LEWIS B. ALLYN
Director of the Westfield Testing and Research Laboratories, Westfield

Regarding Vegex Almonds These Laboratories Certify:

That we have conducted feeding tests in our laboratories, using Vegex Almonds as the sole source of Vitamins: That Vegex Almonds are potent in Fat Soluble A, or the growth-promoting factor, the Water Soluble B and the Water Soluble C factors. In addition they give us satisfactory chemical analysis with an acid neutralizing ash in the organic mineral salts. We regard them as highly desirable products both from the standpoint of Vitamins and of chemical constituents.

Other Certified Vitamin Foods

Vegex Almonds

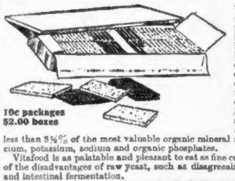
Vegex almonds are a brown nut shaped pure food compound, potent in all the three vitamins. Potent in fat soluble A, rich and strong in vitamins B and C. Eat them instead of nuts. They contain all the values of vitamin A of cream, B of Vegex and C of citrus fruits. They are delicious—a new delicacy with all the value and none of the drawbacks, indigestibility, greasiness, of the heavier food, nuts.

They promote the growth of children and are potent stimulators of the vigor of men and women. They increase the appetite, improve digestion and normalize the functions of the stomach and bowels. Buy them in 10-cent or $1.00 packages.

Sample of Vegex Almonds on Request

Ask for Vegex almonds at your grocery, delicatessen or drug store. If they have not yet received their stock or do not carry these foods send us your name and address and theirs today. For a free sample of Vegex almonds enclose a 2c stamp. Or if you prefer a more generous supply, send $1.00 for a can of 250 if your dealer has not yet received his stock.

Vitafood



10c packages
$2.00 boxes

Vitafood is a fruit, cereal and nut product exceedingly high in all known vitamins. It is composed of uncooked fruit pulp, cereal extracts and concentrates of vegetable organs of growth, depending on natural sugars for sweetness. Contains not less than 3½% of the most valuable organic mineral salts of iron, calcium, potassium, sodium and organic phosphates.

Vitafood is as palatable and pleasant to eat as fine candy. It has none of the disadvantages of raw yeast, such as disagreeable taste, stomach and intestinal fermentation.

Yeast contains only the Vitamin B. Each 10c. package of Vitafood contains more Vitamin B than will be found in twelve times the same quantity of yeast, and in addition it is strong in the growth promoting Vitamin A and the tooth and bone building Vitamin C, which are just as essential to good health and vigor.

To physicians, hospitals, universities, and scientific laboratories—

Affiliated with the Vitamin Food Company, are the Vitamin Research Laboratories, a scientific institution organized to supply physicians and scientific workers with vitamins taken from yeast, root, leaf and vegetable sources in highly concentrated form.

Physicians and scientists engaged in research work can obtain information and free supply of certified vitamin concentrates Biamin and Marmite Tablets by writing the Vitamin Research Laboratories, Gotham National Bank Building, New York.

Physicians can secure supplies from drug stores, and drug stores can secure supplies from the following drug jobbers:

WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS
BOSTON

Union Wholesale Drug Co.	Brewer & Co.
Elvira Drug Co.	Gilman Brothers.
Eastern Drug Co	United Consumers.

Also for the convenience of doctors, nurses and hospitals, prompt deliveries will be made of Biamin capsules, Marmite tablets and Vegex from Home Bureau Medical House, 36 West 59th St., N. Y. C.

Vegex is being prepared daily for demonstrations in several local stores, and little Vegex sandwiches may be tasted—without charge—at the demonstrators' stands in these stores.

Try a week's supply—(at our risk)

The Vitamin Food Company guarantees: Within a week (and we might say, within three days) the value of these vitamin foods will prove itself within the family:—

Your meals will cost less and will be more appetizing. Because you are serving real food, the life of food.

The children will show unusual health and less nervousness and irritation.

The women will improve in every way physically.

The husband will gain more vigorous manhood and his energy will be greater.

That tired feeling, and the many minor ailments due to wrong eating, will disappear.

In fact, you will find that it is not so much the foods we eat that injure us, as our failure to include with our diet the right foods. You can eat a reasonable quantity of almost any food if you also get the right combinations with the right mineral salts from the vegetable substances and if in addition you get the proper supply of vitamins.

Our "moneyback" offer: If, after using a jar of Vegex or a can of Vegex almonds or a box of Vitafood wafers, one or all of these—you do not find the results as per our guarantee; if you do not want to continue always thereafter with one or more of these products, then take the partly empty jar or the partly-used can back to the dealer from whom you got it and get your money back. We will pay that dealer.

Your word and your word alone will decide and there will be no argument. If you are not fully satisfied to continue with this food, simply return what is unused and get your money back—and no charge for the food you used.

This offer, of course, naturally applies on the first purchase only, for only one jar of Vegex and only one can of almonds or one box of wafers. Now, will you try these foods today? Especially a jar of Vegex at 30c or 55c or $1.00. Drink a cup tonight and see! Telephone or call on any of the dealers named below.

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

How a Beautiful Young Girl Finds Her Redemption in Moving Pictures

READ THIS FIRST

DESTINY had dealt savagely with beautiful young Remember Steddon, daughter of a small-town clergyman. She had given her love to Elwood Farnaby, with whom she sang in the choir, but he was unable to marry her, being the sole support of his drunken father's large family. Dr. Bretherick discovers there is reason for a marriage, but while he is urging this on the girl Elwood is fatally injured in an automobile accident. Elwood dies and Dr. Bretherick fixes up a yarn to tell Remember's parents.

FOURTH INSTALMENT

(Back numbers of Mr. Hughes' greatest novel may be secured at the Boston American office.)

THE doctor helped the little widowed mourner into his old buggy and she kept her face uplifted, clear of tears, through the streets and along the walk at home.

She broke only when she heard the doctor's voice telling what the father and mother who received them on the porch of their little house had already heard from a passing gossip. They stared amazed when Mem darted up the stairs without speaking and they herd her crying in her room.

The doctor checked their pursuit and gave them his orders as if they were unruly children. When he had gone the mother stole up to Mem's bedside and gathered her baby to her breast. It would have been almost sweet to weep there if only the truth could have been voiced.

By and by the old clergyman crept up the stairs and into the room and gave his clumsy sympathy. But when he spoke of God's will and of the all-wise, all-loving Providence Mem had to bite her tongue to keep it from blasphemy, from the savage delight of confounding the preacher with truths he could never have suspected. He even went so far as to plead that he had done wisely in keeping Mem from seeing Elwood oftener: otherwise she might have wanted to marry him.

This threw the girl into hysterics. She laugher so fiendishly that her mother drove her father from the room and finally slipped away herself, knowing that solitude is the best medicine for that brief madness.

ALONE WITH HER SOUL.

Alone with her soul, Mem grew afraid of herself. She knew that she could not keep the truth choked back in her rebellious heart forever.

All night long she coughed and wept, and, fearing that the household kept anxious vigil, felt one more remorse added to her pack.

Next morning her father and mother besought the doctor to come to see her. But he answered:

"Send her to me."

When they told her she realized that he was afraid to talk to her in her own home, and she found strength enough to rise from her bed and go to him.

When Mem paused in his door until an onset of crying had passed, he almost smiled. She looked at him like a doomed animal and murmured as she dropped into a chair:

"Don't you suppose this cough will solve my problem and put an end to me before—before—"

He shook his head as he closed the door and went to his desk chair: "Your cough will take a long time to cure or kill. But it may come in very handy. I've got it all thought out. You can't stay in this town now, I suppose. Most of the animals crawl away and hide at such a time: so suppose you just vanish. Let your cough carry you off to—say, Arizona or California."

NECESSARY LIES.

She was startled at this undreamed-of escape. He went on:

"I'll tell the necessary lies. That's a large part of my practice. And practice makes perfect. You will go to some strange town—and pose as a widow.

"You will marry an imaginary man out there and let him die quietly. Then, if you ever want to come home here, you can come back as Mrs. Somebody-or-other."

This reminded her again that she had others to think of besides herself. Her dazed soul, still trying to creep round the deep well of death, busied itself with the fantastic make-believe of the doctor. But she protested:

"How could I go any place and pretend to be a widow when papa and mamma would send all their letters to me as Miss Steddon?"

The doctor was ready for her. He would order Mem to be sent to the Far West immediately and to live meagrely in the desert somewhere, because her father was poor, being a parson, and had loved her too unwisely well to teach her a trade.

Once she was safely started, Mem was to write home that she had met on the train some old flame of earlier years and—

Here his hostile audience interrupted him. Life was slow in Calverly, and Mem could hardly imagine such a swift succession of events as Dr. Bretherick was so glibly planning for her. At any other time, to hear of going to California or anywhere, would have been an epochal adventure. But Paradise was no longer within her rights. She had earned Sheol or some dire penance so well that it was ridiculous to propose romance, and romance in the Eden of palm trees and orange flowers. She revolted, too, from the pretence of having had another lover before Elwood:

NEVER HAD "FLAME."

"But I never had any 'flames'—"

The author was impatient at finding Pegasus held down to this tame hitching post of a life. He said:

"You've been away somewhere, haven't you?"

"Not much nor far," she sighed. "I was in Carthage once at Aunt Mabel's."

"Well, you must have left a lot of broken hearts there."

She sighed again as she shook her head. She was sadly glad to confess that no broken hearts had marked her path:

"Aunt Mabel was sick and I had to nurse her. That's how I got to go. The only men I met brought in the groceries and the mail."

DOCTOR BRETHERICK LAUNCHES HIS PLOT

The good old wise physician advanced to the contest with a lust of conflict and tells Dr. Steddon his daughter must go to California right away to save her life.

"But you've got to have another sweetheart, honey. Your folks don't know that you never met anybody in Carthage. So we'll make one up."

"But they'd ask Aunt Mabel and she'd say there was no such man there."

"Then we'll make him a travelling man that you met. You went to church, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Well, then, one day he occupie dthe pew with you and sang out of your book and walked home with you, and—er—um—you had forgotten all about him until he recalled himself to you on the train, and he was so respectful that you couldn't snub him. And by a strange coincidence he was getting off at wherever you're going to get off at."

FROSTED WITH GRIEF.

Mem was at her apple-blossom time. She was frosted a little with grief, but still white and fragrant, frail and lovable, difficult to leave upon the bough. He saw the tremor on her lips, the little zephyrs of hopeless amorous yearning that lifted her bosom, the soft, lithe fingers that intertwined with one another for lack of stronger hands to clasp. He said:

"You've got to forget yourself and your sorrow and your truthfulness for the sake of your mother and father, because—"

"Just tell me what to do—not why, but what. You must save me and them. I want to die, but it would be too easy, too selfish, too cowardly. Give me something to live for and I'll do my best. Only, don't argue, don't argue!"

"That's the way to talk," he said. "Take my prescriptions as I give them to you, and we'll save everybody from destruction. But if you won't let me tell you why, you must ask no questions. I order you to go West and to find an imaginary husband there. His name shall be—let me see, what shall we call him? Wait a minute."

He reached back to an overcrowded bookcase and took out the first volume his hands encountered. It was a history of medicine, and he was fond of it because it was also a history of the vanity of human science in its eternal war with death and of the bitter hostility that greeted every benefactor.

PICKING A NAME.

He rejected Galen, Harvey, Jenner, and came finally upon the name of Doctor Woodville, who went to the defence of Jenner in the great war for vaccination and helped to make the hideous ravages of smallpox as raro now as they were common in his time. Bretherick liked this name of Woodville.

He had sent patients to Tuscon—which he pronounced "Tuckson"—and also to Yuma, which had a wild and romantic sound. At each of these towns he planned that Mem should remain a week or two in her own name. In her letters home she was to say much of this Mr. Woodville and his devotion.

Then, as Dr. Bretherick's excited mental spinnerets poured out the web, she was to write that Mr. Woodville was called farther West and could not bear to leave her, pleaded with her so earnestly to become his wife and go with him, that her heart had told her to accept him. She was to prescribe a hasty marriage and request that her letters thereafter be addressed to her as "Mrs. Woodville."

After a brief honeymoon she could eliminate Dr. Woodville in some way to be decided at leisure. It would be risky, he said, to let Mr. Woodville live too long.

Mem had no experience of the dramatic limbo: but she began to play the critic and point out the difficulties and the spots where the action would break down.

"Suppose I met somebody at Yuma or Tuckson who knew me and wrote home. Suppose some accident kept me there. What if I fell ill and couldn't get away? And money—if I married Mr. Woodville, my father would stop sending me any, and then I'd starve to death"—

The doctor frowned. His fancy had carried him skippingly over the high spots of the landscape, and now she had tripped him and cast him headlong. But he would not give her up. He pointed out the attractive features of his scheme, the travel, the new landscapes, the new faces and souls, the glorious adventures, the possibility of meeting a real Mr. Woodville who would replace the home-made product.

While he tried to sell the merchandise of his fancy, Mem's own imagination was riotous. She was young, starved for life, for other horizons. Death and disgrace were more untimely than he heart realized in its grief. The very perils of the enterprise made it a little interesting. But chiefly she found it acceptable because it was odious and difficult and a sacrifice for others' sakes. And so at last she consented to play the part as best she could.

IN HASTE TO BEGIN.

Mem rose to go. She was in haste to begin her career. But she gasped and sank into her chair with a deathly dread. Her first-audience must be her father and mother, and she was paralyzed with stage fright, sick, dizzy with confusion and the abrupt collapse of memory.

Doctor Bretherick put his arm about her, lifted her to his breast, and upheld her like a tower of strength, quoting the words Walt Whitman used to the wounded soldier: "Lean on me! By God, I will not let you die."

Mem was not stirred by the doctor's promises of happiness and life, but only by the persuasion that she would be really proving her love for her parents by deceiving them. Doctor Bretherick offered to take the brunt of her first clash with her desperate future.

"I'll go home with you again and fix it all up with your papa an mamma. They'll take it kind of hard, likely, losing you right away, and they'll worry over your health and your going away alone; but we've got to do the best we can for their sweet sakes. If you stayed here you'd break your own heart and theirs and die in the bargain. My way saves your life and their pride. All they'll suffer will be losing the sight of you; but that's part of the job of being a parent.

"And part of the job of being a doctor is giving people a lot of pain to save them from a lot more, and scaring them for their own good. So come along, honey."

As they set out upon the short ride to the clergyman's home the doctor felt as if he were advancing to a duel with an ancient adversary. He did not believe in Doctor Steddon's creeds. They were cruel legends, in his opinion. He pictured preachers as men who slander the beauties of this world in order to glorify a false heaven of their own concoction: who would make this world a joyless, barren hell in order to save its citizens from an imaginary nightmare of ancient ignorance; who minimize the hideous cruelties of this life and salve its agonies with words. He could not understand or love the God they preached. He did not believe their God to be the true God. His heart was full of love and of aspiration and of mystic bafflements and longings, but he was utterly convinced that whatever God might be. He was not this man-made God who inspired Doctor Steddon with such hatred of His world and its ways.

He advanced to the contest, therefore, with a lust of conflict. He felt himself a kind of Sir Gawain with a lady on the pillion, riding into a dark forest to conquer the giant ogre who denied her her realm.

But when he reached the castle he found it a humble cottage; the ogre was an undernourished old parson afraid of this world and the next, but most afraid of his beloved daughter's health. And at the ogre's side on the drawbridge the ogress was a frightened mother wringing wrinkled hands with terror.

WITH TREMBLING ANXIETY.

Seeing Mem returning with the doctor, they had come out on the porch in trembling anxiety. They were already so abased of hope that when the doctor told them that Mem would be all right if she could get away to California right away, they felt as if he had lifted them from the dust. He was not so much taking their ewe lamb from them as saving her to them.

They were fawningly grateful to him, zealous for any sacrifice to benefit their child. The doctor despised himself for a contemptible slanderer because of the mere thoughts that had passed through his mind on his way to the duel.

As for Mem, she was crucified with remorse. If her parents had only been harsh with her or stingy with the money she would require, if they had only mentioned the difficulties or celebrated their sacrifice as a duty, she could have found some straw to cling to as she drowned in self-contempt. But their terror and their tenderness were all for her, and her love for them gushed like hot blood until it seemed an inconceivable treachery to conceal from them the truth.

It was well that Dr. Bretherick came with her and stood by to check her outcry, for her heart was fairly bursting with the centrifugal explosive power of a compressed secret.

Dr. Bretherick kept her under the ward of his stern eyes until he had frightened the parents just enough and reassured them just enough to make sure that they would let Mem go, and go alone.

GAINED A STIMULANT.

He gained a little acrid stimulant from Dr. Steddon's dread of seeing his innocent daughter leave the shelter of her home and go out into the dangerous world. The doctor knew too well from a doctor's long experience how far the beautiful ideal of the home is from the actual usual household. He knew too well that many a home keeps in more dreadful evils than it keeps out. But he could not say these things. He had a home of his own and a family of his own, and he revered the dream and the ideal.

And so the continuity began to move. At first it followed the doctor's manuscript with remarkable smoothness. Then Life, the ruthless Philistine manager, took a hand in it and twisted and turned it until its author would never have recognized it.

It carried the frightened waif of village disaster to cosmic heights unimaginable, to unheard-of experiences wherein this familiar experience of hers served as a schooling and an inspiration. Her degradation became her salvation; her practice of lies taught her eternal truths.

Her father, when he learned of this, wished that she had died in her cradle. But millions of people blessed her where she walked and smiled.

And by a miracle unequaled in the chronicle of any previous generation she walked and smiled and carried balm and spikenard all about the world without wings, yet with unwearying feet. She appeared in a hundred places at once by a diabolic telepathy in a multiplication that made of one shy, frightened girl a shining multitude. And at times each of her was of an elfin tininess, at times of titanic size. But all of her was always of more than human sympathy, and spoke a language that men of every nation understood.

'GIVEN FREEDOM OF CITY,' BRITISHER LANDS IN CELL

New York, May 17.—Declaring he had been "given the freedom of the city," a man who said he was Jack F. Ayres, twenty-nine, a lawyer of England, protested to the police of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station that he was privileged to conduct himself as he pleased.

But Miss Anna Calumbo, nineteen, said otherwise, and the police acquiesced in her views. She charged that Ayres accosted her on Fourth avenue, insisting she shake hands with him. On his persistence she called Trafic Policeman Smith.

WIFE URGED BY COOK TO DEPOSIT HER MONEY

The Boston American today continues exclusive publication of the extraordinary love letters written by Walter W. S. Cook to his wife, Mrs. Harriet Buck Greenfield Cook of Cambridge. Cook, then a Harvard instructor, was touring Europe at his wife's expense. These letters, introduced by Mrs. Cook's counsel at the Cook divorce trial, secured for the wife a divorce decree nisi.

June 1, 1920.

Dear Sweetheart: I have just received the following cable from you, which I enclose. I thank you for depositing $100, and I hope you have deposited the other $50 as well by this time in the Cambridge Trust Company.

I don't know on what date you sent the $300 to Barcelona, but I haven't received it yet, and it takes three days to get a letter from there, and you may have sent it only a day or two ago.

I don't know what urgent business there is pending my return, and all you have to do is to take a pen in hand and write me. If you have allowed matters to pile up, why don't drag me home and ruin my work because you are too indolent to write me. I started taking up important business with you before leaving Paris, such as the house question, and I have written asking your opinion about several other matters, but I am utterly in the dark. You wait until the last minute and then rush off to the telegraph office and send a cable.

CABLES COSTLY.

My health is entirely improved. I have completely recovered from my brief two weeks' illness in bed. I have no more pneumonia than you have. I put that in the cable, as I had waited for a week for an answer to my last, only to wake you up, to let you know I wanted some money in a hurry. I am perfectly well and never felt better in my life, and I am eager to push out of this place and get to Barcelona.

This cable of yours must have cost you a pretty penny. How much did you pay for it? If tax reports are rejected sit down with a pen and write me all about it, and I will write back and give you my advice. If imperative property questions come up, then sit down and write. Trouble is that you let everything fly and don't write because you are too slack, and then start sending cables, which make me rise up and hit the ceiling.

Now, I would like nothing better than to have gone to Barcelona, bought a lot of books and photographs, stayed there a month and sailed home, stayed in America two months, sold the house, put the furniture in a warehouse and came back here in October. That is what I had in the back of my head when I wrote you about the house, but you said you had other ideas and what they were Heaven only knows. I don't.

Again it is a question of you mixing into my work and affairs, and forcing me to do something contrary to my judgment.

CALLED HER HELPLESS.

You are always so damned afraid that I am not going to consider you that you butt in and upset me. When I am mulling over a thing I often discuss it with you or somebody, but I am only thinking aloud, and when I come to a decision I expect to arrive at my own conclusions and act on them, even if they are bad, without any help from you. If they are bad, I suffer, but you don't, but I have to do a thing alone and I assume complete responsibility.

Well, now, to prove my point, this situation arises where you want me to come home and I would like to, but I cannot, and the only reason is because you butted in and talked me to death and twisted me around your finger to such an extent that I acted contrary to my own good judgment.

You will remember that you talked about that damned assistantship until I nearly lost my mind. You said that you wanted me to have that job and dinned it into my ears in a thousand different ways. You said that I had got to do something and you will remember that you kept at me all the time and pounded the idea into my head after the house was bought that if I did not get that job I would have to tutor and earn $800 at least. You made me think that the roof would fall in and the whole family go to smash and ruin if I did not earn enough money to buy my cigarettes and postage stamps. You made me promise and swear by all the saints with my hand on my heart that I would do it. Well, I thought you were talking through your hat, but I promised and I will stick to it.

There isn't a girl in the world who has as big and noble a heart as you have. You are wonderful in that respect, and that is why I married you, but it is your head! When you try to run my affairs and career and settle down to deciding and executing the simple daily tasks of a household, you are the most helpless, hopeless person I have ever seen, and you ought to realize this and try to overcome it. I try to tell you and train you, but I don't have great success. When you do things spontaneously from your heart, you make everyone love you, but when you start getting ideas, and jamming your ideas down other people's throats, you get into hot water. You put up the money for me to come to Europe, and I certainly appreciate it. I love you because you do it, gracefully and make me think it is a pleasure for you to see me doing what I want to do and what's best for my work, but then you go and spoil it all, as you oftentimes do, by telling me to come home at once, upsetting my plans, and not finishing the one thing I came here for.

Your Loving Walter.

More of these letters will be printed in tomorrow's Boston American.

J. BERTRAM SIMON, well-known photographer, of Tacoma, Wash., who says that since taking Tanlac with such good results he now knows why everybody is praising this wonderful medicine.

"When they told me about Tanlac it seemed almost too good to be true, but since taking the medicine I know for myself that all they said about it was so," said J. Bertram Simon, 1031 E. 46th St., Tacoma, Wash., a well-known photographer.

"I suffered from rheumatism in my shoulders for ten years and at one time had to go to the hospital. I was down in bed for months and hardly able to turn from side to side. I couldn't sleep and I don't believe I had a day free from pain. My appetite failed and I couldn't digest a thing properly. Gas made me have heartburn for hours after meals.

"In a very short time after I started taking Tanlac I actually felt like a new man. I am now entirely rid of rheumatism and my stomach is in first-class condition, while I have gained ten pounds and never felt better. I have recommended Tanlac to a number of people and I am always glad to say a good word for this remarkable medicine."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

GORDON CASE IS AGAIN DELAYED

The now celebrated guardianship fight over twenty-one-year-old Dorothy Davies Gordon, Cambridge heiress, several times postponed, was put over until May 31, in the East Cambridge Probate Court today.

Her present guardian, William F. Jardine of Boston, seeks reappointment. An uncle, John Gardner of Baldwin, Long Island, N. Y., seeks to oust Jardine and secure appointment.

Judge Alden P. White granted another continuance, because, he stated, he wished the case to go on uninterrupted once it started. John L. Sheehan and Joseph Spencer represent Gardner. Robert W. Nason is Jardine's counsel.

SEIZE CAR OF LIQUOR SHIPPED AS EGG PLANT

Philadelphia, May 17.—Acting on reports from Florida that a carload of "camouflaged bootleg liquor" was en route to this city, prohibition agents seized a freight car containing 342 crates billed as "egg plants" and "red peppers." The crates were lined with a small quantity of the vegetables, but inside of each were found several bottles of Scotch.

PIANOS

CUT PRICE SALE

WHEN you want to buy a piano, no matter what make, come here, where selling pianos is reduced to a science to benefit you. Remember this—if I did not sell pianos much lower than others I would not be, as I am, the largest individual piano retailer in New England. Any piano is just as good if bought here as it would be if bought in the warerooms of its maker. These beautiful instruments, acknowledged to be the world's leading makes, are in this sale at prices that startle the piano world and the piano-buying public, because of the fact that the quotations are so low that they seem ridiculous and almost unbelievable.

In comparison with other prices mine certainly do seem foolishly low, and it would seem to the average person that my prices are TOO low—all out of proportion to the value of the instruments. Be that as it may, I will sell at prices quoted and deliver the goods. Sincerely, J. P. COLLINS.

24 DISABLED VETS BLINDED BY "HOOCH"

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 17.—Twenty-four disabled soldiers were made temporarily blind by bad whiskey sold to them at the United States Veterans' Training School at Pocono Pines, according to charges entered today before Commissioner Smith by General Prohibition Agent Rogers, who caused Thomas Lamb, Francis Berger and Leonard Nicbardt to be sent to the Luzerne County Jail on bootlegging charges.

PRICE OF PEA COAL GOES UP $1.50 TON

The price of coal is going up again.

First announcement was made today by the Metropolitan Coal Company, which has boosted the price of pea coal from $10.50 to $12 a ton.

A short time ago the company was forced to drop the price of this grade from $13.50 to $10.50 because of an excess accumulation.

The company now has on hand only enough pea coal to supply current demands.

FRENCH TO TAKE UP DEBT TO UNITED STATES

Paris, May 17 (By the Associated Press).—France has informed the American War Debt Funding Commission it is ready to send a special mission to America to confer regarding payment of the French debt to the United States.

Finance Minister De Lasteyrie recommended to the Cabinet that a special mission headed by Jean Parmentier, administrator of the Ministry of Finance, be sent to the United States to confer with the Debt Funding Commission over the payment of the principal and interest of the American war advances to France.

Premier Poincare accordingly handed a note to Ambassador Herrick to this effect, asking the commission to notify the French government when it would be most convenient to take up the question.

SERVICES FOR TWO CATHOLIC PRIESTS

Requiem Masses Will Be Said in Dorchester and Chelsea Churches

Funeral services for the Rev. William F. Powers, pastor of St. Rose Church, Chelsea, and the Rev. Timothy J. Mahoney, pastor of St. William's Church, Dorchester, both of whom died yesterday, will be held on Friday and Saturday morning, respectively.

It is expected that Cardinal O'Connell will preside at both ceremonies and pronounce the final absolution in each case.

Arrangements are being made to have the bodies of the dead priests brought into their respective churches and plabed on catafalques in front of the main altar. The office of the dead will be chanted by priests of the parishes and from surrounding parishes. Guards of honor will be in atendance. These will be made up of members of the Knights of Columbus and of the various parish societies.

Masses at which children of both parishes will be present will be said in both churches on Friday morning in Chelsea and on aSturday morning at St. Williams.

At St. Rose Church, Chelsea, their will be a solemn requiem mass at 19 o'clock on Friday with the Right Rev. Mgr. Richard Neagle, rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Malden, celebrant. The Rev Dan'el Scannell of Franklin will be the deacon. The Rev Thomas Quinlan of Natick, will be the sub-deacon. The eulogy will be preached by the Right Rev Mgr. Michael T McManus permanent rector of St. Mary's Brookline.

On Saturday morning at 10 o'clock a solemn requiem mass for the repose of the soul of Father Mahoney will be celebrated in St. William's hurch, Dorchester, avenue. The Right Rev. Mgr. George J. Patterson, of St. Vincent's Church, South Boston, will be the celebrant. He will be assisted by the Rev. oJhn Cronin of Beachmont as deacon, and the Rev. Francis V. Murphy of Milton, as sub-deacon. The eulogy will be preached by the Rev. Francis Glynn of Melrose.

COHAN'S SKILL REVEALED IN 'THE TAVERN'

By FRED J. McISAAC.
Dramatic Editor

The second time you see "The Tavern," you'll like it even better than the first time. On your initial visit your state of mind is too much like the hired man in the play who keeps asking 'What's going on here anyway? Who are all these people? What's all the shootin' for?

I saw "The Traven" for the second time last night. The first time was a year ago when Arnold Daly was playing the role now performed by George M. Cohan, the producer, shall we say the traducer of the original melodama, which was written by Cora Dick Gantt?

NOW A TRAVESTY.

This play was probably written in all seriousness, and in another age might have been accepted in the same way. Cohan realized the impossibility of presenting in first-class theatres of today an extravagant, stilted and pompous play about a "dark and stormy night" and "strange guests at a tavern," but he saw how a little rewriting might make it a travesty upon itself.

When the piece was originally produced with Arnold Daly it scored instantly with the critics, and a little sless rapidly with the public, which was unaccustomed to that kind of entertainment. But after a few weeks it became one of the hits of New York.

Daly played the Vagabond in a delightfully whimsical manner, he made love in the manner of one of the best leading men of the present generation, completely captivated the audience and left them dumbfounded and rather annoyed when it developed that he was only an escaped lunatic after all.

CONSISTENT THROUGHOUT.

Cohan does not imitate Daly in any degree. Possibly his interpretation is more like the author's original intention, and he ought to know, being to all intents and purposes author and producer.

George M. has a wild look in his eye from his first entrance, clowns a good deal more than Daly does, and when he finally departs the audience regrets him, but doesn't feel heart broken that he doesn't marry the Governor's daughter. Which is probably about what he desires.

Handicapped as he is by a rather nasal speaking voice, it is astonishing how well Mr. Cohan carries out his ideas of this curious role. He is consistent from beginning to end, he manages to be pathetic and lovable, if less romantic than Arnold Daly, and he reads the wierd lines of the part with the greatest possible skill.

WORK A REVELATION.

To those who remember Cohan only as a musical comedy dancer and comedian, his work in "The Tavern" at the Tremont Theatre will be a revelation. But he has been working up to this role by playing several big comedy parts in New York productions which did not reach this city.

The supporting company is brilliant. If you remember the old fashioned melodramas with their intensely theatrical effects and the extravagant manner of delivering the lines you will be convulsed as such people as Walter Perkins, Norman Hackett, Thaddeus Gray Justin Lees, Edwin Walter and Eleanor Montell play their roles. And Isabel Withers was quite charming as the impressionable Governor's daughter.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Bride of Boston Man Coming from West to Live Here

By BETTY ALDEN.

AMONG the brides coming from distant parts of the country to make their home in Boston is Mrs. Philip C. Hill, who was formerly Miss Marie Terese Whiting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo deA. Whiting of Chicago.

It was just a week ago that young Philip Cushing Hill, son of the Spencer R. Hills of Boston, claimed as his wife the attractive member of the Windy City's younger set. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents on Hyde Park boulevard and was followed by a reception at the South Shore Country Club. The engagement of the young couple had been announced in mid-summer of last year.

The bridegroom, who received his sheepskin from Princeton just a year ago, was attended as best man by his father, Spencer Richardson Hill, of the well-known Boston banking house of Richardson Hill & Co. The ushers were Edward W. Pierce, 2d, of Boston, and J. H. Forsyth Tramel of Chicago.

Mr. Hill ad his bride are to spend the Summer at North Scituate Beach, and after the first of October they will be "at home" to their friends at No. 1011 Beacon street, Brookline.

Another Western bride coming East is Mrs. Philip Gray Lovell (Helen Danforth Smith), whose marriage to the son of Mrs. Walter D. Lovell of Cambridge took place last month at the bride's home in far off Omaha, Neb. Young Mrs. Lovell was introduced to Boston society about three Summers ago, the presentation taking place at the Cohasset Summer home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crittenden Smith. Making her debut at the same function was Miss Ruth Putnam, daughter of the George J. Putnams of Brookline, whose marriage to William Claflin takes place next Saturday. The Philip Lovells are to make their home on Park avenue, Weston.

APROPOS of weddings, Boston is to have representation at two important nuptial events taking place early next month in New York.

Miss Caroline Almy, daughter of the William Almys of Warren street, Brookline, is going over to serve as bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Silvia Lord Seymour and Darnall Wallace. The ceremonial, which will attract a fashionable throng of Gotham's smart set, will be solemnized on June 10 at the country home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Daniel Lord, at Lawrence, L. I. Miss Seymour is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Origen S. Seymour, also of Lawrence, L. I.

The groom, whose mother is Mrs. Arthur Sinclair of Madison avenue, New York, is a Harvard man. On his maternal side he is descended from Colonel Henry Darneall, Deputy Governor of Maryland in 1672, who came to America with Lord Baltimore.

There is also a Boston interest in the coming marriage of Miss Katherine Hurd and John Bradley Cummings, both of New York, at whose wedding, on June 8, in the Church of the Incarnation, young Buckley Wells will be among the group of ushers. The latter, who is a classmate of the groom—both are members of the Harvard class of '19—has been living this Winter in New York, where his mother, Mrs. Livermore Wells, joined him for the season after leasing the Boston home on Lime street.

The prospective bridegroom, whose mother is Mrs. Chester Swain, will have his brother, Thayer Cummings, as best man. His fiancee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hurd of East Seventy-seventh street.

A NUMBER of prominent matrons are lending their names to the concert being given on Saturday evening at the Hunnewell Club, Newton, by the Country Day School Glee Club and the Mandolin Glee Club.

Among those who are sponsoring the affair—which will be followed by dancing—are Mesdames Edward M. Hallett, John F. Alden, William Soule and Prescott Warren.

Apropos of patronesses, a coterie of well-known folk are interesting themselves in the competitive athletic program which is to take place in the Harvard Stadium on June 10, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A.

In this group are Mrs. Charles Blanchard (Theresa Weld), Mrs. James O. Foss, Mrs. M. Lawrence Higgins, Miss Ellen Mason, Miss Marjorie Bouve and Mrs. Charles W. Norby.

Betty Alden

MRS. PHILIP C. HILL

Mrs. Philip C. Hill (Marie Terese Whiting) who comes as a bride from Chicago to make her home in Brookline, is the daughter of the Alonzo de A. Whitings. Her husband, a Princeton '21 man, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer R. Hill of Boston.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

MRS. ALANSON TUCKER of the Hotel Somerset and Mrs. Royal Robbins are among the Bostonians arriving at the Curtis Hotel in Lenox. The Berkshire season is already well under way, each week-end finding a host of visitors or members of the cottage colonies arriving at the various resorts of that region.

General and Mrs. Wilbur E. Wilder, who spent most of the Winter abroad, have returned to Newport, R. I., and are at their estate, known as "Roslyn." Mrs. Wilder is the mother of Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, Jr., of Boston.

Mrs. Louis A. Frothingham of Boston is registered for a few days' visit at the Hotel Ritz-Carlton, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Goodrich (Madeline Boardman) of Beacon street are planning to arrive for the season at their Summer home in West Manchester, known as "Chubbs."

Larz Anderson of Brookline and Washington presented the cup awarded for the military class at the Washington Horse Show on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, who take a prominent part in the social life at the capital, as they do here, had as guests in their box on the last day of the show the Chinese Minister and Mme. Sze and Mrs. Ernst Locke, as well as several others.

FOOD PRICE INCREASE GREATER IN BOSTON

Washington, May 17.—An increase of one-tenth of one per cent. in the retail cost of food to the average family in the month ending April 15 was reported today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. Of the 43 food articles listed, 19 showed a decrease in price, including potatoes, 6 per cent.; cheese, 3 per cent.; fresh milk, lard, cabbage and bananas, 2 per cent., and butter, macaroni and baked beans, 1 per cent. Cities showing an increase of 1 per cent. or more in the average family expenditure for food during the month included Boston, Manchester and Portland, Me Fall River, Mass., showed a decrease of 2 per cent.

ARMY BAND BANS JAZZ TONIGHT

George Kazamek

No jazz music will be heard from the 5th Regiment band which will play at 7.30 tonight on Boston Common, according to Warrant Officer George Kazamek band leader.

This band is the oldest and largest in the U. S. Army, having seventy members. They have been taught by the leader to be fond of good music.

"Give any band under instruction good music and they will not take to jazz," said Bandmaster Kazamek.

NEW MOVE TO END STRIKE IN LAWRENCE

Peace Conferences Follow Return of the Union Chief to Textile City

Lawrence, May 17.—The second attempt to settle the Lawrence textile strike, now in its ninth week, is being made following the return to Lawrence of Thomas F. McMahon president of the United Textile Workers.

Mr. McMahon on his arrival here went into conference with the Lawrence Textile Council. It was reported that he would today be invited to confer with certain mill officials.

This second conference, it is declared, will take place through the Citizens' Strike Committee. This organization has made a series of efforts to settle the strike peaceably, and is continually seeking to bring employes and operators into harmonious relation.

The United Textile Workers will have pickets at the Arcadia Mills during every hour of the working day, according to announcement by Organizer Francis Gorman. Pickets have been especially active about this plant, and fully 2,000 men and women patrolled before its gates yesterday.

Strike officials have adopted a ticket-punching plan, by means of which they are able to learn definitely which of the strikers has been on duty picketing the mill. Each striker is given a ticket, which is punched each day he appears at the mill. It was previously announced that those who would not picket did not deserve to share in strike relief.

Pickets Jeer Workers At Mill in Lawrence.

Lawrence, May 17.—Several hundred pickets congregated in the vicinity of the Monomac Spinning Company today and hooted and jeered the few workers who went into the mill. According to officials of the mill, stones were hurled, but as far as is known nobody was hurt. The mill officials also stated that the number of police in the vicinity was not large enough to handle the situation.

PROTEST BEACON ST. PARKING REGULATIONS

Merchants on the north side of Beacon street, between Harvard and Centre streets, Coolidge Corner, Brookline, filed a protest with the Brookline Selectmen today against the new police regulations regarding traffic. In an effort to relieve congestion the police have stopped parking on the north side of Beacon, between the streets named. The merchants say the order will rob them of hundreds of dollars worth of the business of transient buyers. They contend purchasers should be allowed to park on the north side for a few minutes.

SLAYS WIDOW, WOUNDS HER DAUGHTER

Kent, Ct., May 17.—Mrs. Louise Benedict, a widow, was shot and killed and her daughter, Mrs. Page, shot and wounded at the Benedict farm on Kent Mountain today by Sidney Ward, a farmhand.

Following the shooting Ward escaped into the woods and is being sought by a posse.

As far as could be learned, the women, who lived alone on the farm, got into a dispute with Ward over feeding the chickens and he is said to have shot Mrs. Benedict and then beaten her to death.

He then shot Mrs. Page in the arm and fled.

Why millions of women wear them

Hard floors and pavements everywhere! Just standing is a strain—every step is a jolt.

O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels relieve this strain. Trim, tough, springy, they absorb the shocks that tire you out. A style for every type of shoe.

The price of O'Sullivan's to you is generally the same as the price of ordinary heels, in spite of the fact that they cost the repairman more.

Ask for O'Sullivan's when you leave your shoes—see that they are attached.

Says Buy Your Booze From a Bootlegger. They Run All the Risks and Take All the Chances Except Drinking It

There is so much competition between moonshiners that most of them now have regular routes and deliver your liquor to your door.

falling off a wagon by digging holes

When you hear footsteps on your front porch in the morning and the clinking of bottles you don't know whether it's the milkman or the bootlegger.

People used to get two quarts of milk and one pint of cream. Now they order one pint of milk and two quarts of gin.

Milk is necessary to keep babies alive, but older people can live on whiskey, if they can sell enough of it.

There is not much difference between milk and moonshine, they're both bottled in the barns.

Good milk is pasteurized, but good whiskey is past your reach.

These ginmen put their hooch up in white bottles and nobody can tell what you're drinking until after the coroner's inquest.

Of course once in a while the wagon will hit a rut and a bottle of hooch will fall off and break. No wonder so many people sleep with their windows open.

One guy left his window open on a windy night and he woke up in the morning intoxicated.

He always made sure of a bottle in the street.

And the only time he sobered up was when the city had the roads fixed.

When father was a kid he used to sit up and wait for Santa Claus. Now he sits up and waits for the bootlegger.

But instead of hanging up a stocking he puts out a bottle.

You have to get up early in the morning to fool the revenue men and these bootleggers do it.

They're out so early that they meet a lot of the prohibition officers on the way home.

But they never bother with the ginmen's booze. The arms of the law can only carry so much at a time.

They figure that two bottles in the hand are worth one on a delivery wagon.

If you like to drink order your liquor from the Haig & Haig dairy in your neighborhood. The run all the risks and take all the chances except drinking it.

RABBI WINS CUSTODY OF MRS. DURYEA'S WARD

New York, May 17.—As a result of habeas corpus proceedings to insure her being brought up a Jew, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise has won the custody of Esther Razon, twelve-year-old ward of Mrs. Florence Spencer Duryea. The girl was brought here by Mrs. Duryea from the Jewish National Orphanage in Constantinople and played the leading role in "Alice in Hungerland."

SHOTS FIRED AS R. I. MILL IS STONED

Providence, May 17.—Police on strike duty at the plant of the Crown Manufacturing Company, on the Pawtucket-Attleboro line, today fired upon a motor car loaded with men, when the later appeared at the front of the mill and stoned the windows of thes tructure.

Patrolman Howard Barrows of the Attleboro police was injured when he became entangled in barbed wire during the pursuit. Before going to the mill the men, said to number half a dozen, went to the home of Patrolman George Berry, who has been on duty at the mill, and broke a number of windows.

BROKERAGE TRUSTEES SUE SPRINGFIELD MAN

Suit to recover $35,000 from Leon J. Harley, Jr., of Springfield was filed in Federal Court today by the trustees of Hollister, White & Co., bankrupt stock brokers of this city. They allege he received a preferential payment while the firm was insolvent.

RECEIVER IS ASKED FOR GORTON-PEW

Frank M. McMullin of New Jersey today filed suit in United States District Court asking that a receiver be appointed for the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Company of Gloucester, one of the largest fish companies in the United States.

McMullin claims that the Gorton-Pew concern is indebted to him in the amount of $5,364, which he has demanded and which they have refused to pay. He further declares that he is but one of many other creditors and that the Gorton-Pew Company has outstanding debts exceeding its capital stock by $1,375,000.

The complainant further alleges that the assets of the company on May 10, 1922, were respectively: Cash and bills receivable, $250,000; plant and investment, $2,300,000; and good will $1,642,245.

McMullin affirms that substantially all of the indebtedness of the company is represented by demand notes held by more than 100 banks.

He states that the note-holders have refused to give the Gorton-Pew concern a further extension on them, and that that concern has paid 35 per cent. of these notes. The creditors, he states, demand the payment of the remainder.

The business will suffer a severe loss unless a receiver is appointed, McMullin states in his suit. The assets are fully adequate, but if forced to realize on them, he declares, the assets will be severely impaired.

He further claims that the value of the business and good will will be badly wasted and destroyed and probably rendered insolvent if a receiver is not appointed.

A hearing of the case will be held next Monday before Judge Anderson.

Y. M. C. A. Dinner May 25.

The next new members' dinner of the Huntington avenue branch of the Boston Y. M. C. A., will be held at 6:30 p. m., May 25. Reservations are now being made.

The "Bluebell"

WE hardly expected, when we rang in this feature straw hat style, that it would make such a noise. It sure is a ringing, tingling style sensation.

ALL STRAWS ONE PRICE $2.45

WE opened the season last Saturday with the greatest stock of straws we've ever prepared, but after seeing our stores crowded to the doors with eager and pleased men, most of them choosing the "Bluebell," we immediately increased production on this feature style.

It's a wonderful hit, unusual in the fact that it is not conspicuous, yet it is distinctive and has all the earmarks of recognized $5 straws.

WOMAN BLAMED BY HER FAMILY

Restless, irritable, nervous, excitable and exacting is the charge against her by those nearest and dearest. How little they realize the struggle the overworked wife and mother is making to keep about and perform the hundred and one duties that devolve upon her! Every hour her headaches, backaches and pains drag her down until she can stand it no longer. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored more women in this condition to health and happiness than any other medicine. The grateful letters we are continually publishing in this paper from women who have found health by its use prove it.—Advertisement.

RADIO MEDICAL SERVICE FOR SHIPS AT SEA

By Eastern Radio Institute.

Ships at sea which do not have a physician as a member of the crew are now able to get medical advice by radio. This service is rendered through the coastal stations by the Radio Corporation of America, working in conjunction with the Public Health Service.

Surgeon General Cummings has issued the following order to Public Health Hospitals on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts:

"You are directed to furnish promptly whatever advice seems indicated, couched in language intelligible to the layman."

ADVICE BY RADIO.

This service is obtained by sending a radio message from the ship to any listed coastal station, the reply being radioed back to the ship. Although this service was intended primarily for ships not carrying a physician, consultations between a physician aboard ship and the hospital ashore can also be accomplished.

The Bell telephone system will inaugurate a radio toll broadcasting service in New York city within a short time. The station is to be located at Walker and Lispenard streets, in a building 350 feet high, upon which have been erected towers 100 feet in height.

NEW TOLL RADIOPHONE.

It is understood that it will be equipped with many new and modern features, including a new filtering device, whereby a number of wave lengths can be transmitted simultaneously, and a modulating system 100 per cent. perfect. If certain experiments that are to be conducted with the toll system are successful, a nation-wide Bell Radio-Phone Service will result.

The broadcasting toll service will be available for all uses except advertising—this being restricted under the new regulations covering radiophone transmission. It is possible that political speeches will be accepted for transmission, and that any business concern may employ this utility for the entertainment of the public, being allowed a "By courtesy of" announcement.

HELD FOR THEFTS FROM HUB BANK

Fred Graves Kirby, twenty-three-year-old accountant, formerly a shining light of night life in the Back Bay, was arrested in Pittsburgh, charged with larceny of $75 from the Second National Bank of Boston and $250 from depositors of that institution.

Detectives had trailed him for more than a year. The trail led through New York, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Police allege that Kirby stole the money from the bank by means of checks, using information he had obtained while going over the books in his character of accountant.

They also say a woman whom he supported in style in a Back Bay apartment caused his downfall. He will be brought back here for trial.

LE CLAIR TO BE EXTRADITED TO GLOUCESTER

Gloucester, May 17.—Police Inspector John J. Curtis and State Officer William Murray have left for Poughkeepsie, N. Y., carrying extradition papers for "Major" John Lawrence Le Clair, modern Don Juan and bigamist de luxe, whom they will bring back to Gloucester with them.

John Le Clair

The officers also carry an indictment, recently returned by the Essex County Grand Jury, charging Le Clair with bigamy. The complainant is Miss Maude Allen, whom Le Clair married last September under the name of John Johnson, and whom he deserted shortly afterwards.

He will be brought to trial as soon as he reaches this town.

Confronted by questioners in the Poughkeepsie jail, Leclair admitted the spectacular matrimonial career that had been ascribed to him, and estimated the number of his victims at seventy-eight.

Draft Deserter Jailed

Private John Alexis Olson of Worcester, found guilty by court-martial at the army base of draft desertion was sentenced to five months' confinement at the coast defences of Boston.

SIMMONS GIRLS HAVE ANNUAL MAY REVELS

The regular morning beauty sleep of the Simmons College seniors was abruptly interrupted today when the laughing, singing, frolicing sophomores, clad in gay and festive attire, invaded the senior dormitories and tendered the drowsy upperclassmen their annual May Day Serenade.

Through the dormitory corridors the sophomores paraded, chanting their college songs, pounding on doors and literally raising the roofs with a fanfare of tin horns and other noise making instruments.

Hair still done up in curlers, noses shining under their generous applications of cold cream the sleepy seniors quickly began to appear at the doors and acknowledge the tribute being paid them with answering cheers and songs.

When the last and sleepiest senior had finally been properly serenaded and routed from her bed the merrymaking students all filed out onto the college campus in motely costume and staged their picturesque May time revels.

Pretty Eleanor O'Connor, '22, was crowned Queen of the May and Agnes Broward, 24, the King. With great pomp both were escorted to an improvised throne where they promptly assumed reign over the festive collegians.

Dutch, Greek and peasant dances were held by the sophomores, who were dressed in filmsy white flowing gowns. Charlotte Chamberlain of Lynn topped the terpsichorean numbers off with a "Wine Dance," depicting the spirit of the ages.

A strawberry shortcake breakfast followed and the revels concluded with a grand march around the gayly beribboned May pole.

Russia Seeks Pact With U. S., Says Trotzky

By International News Service.

Moscow, May 17.—Despite the outcome of the Genoa conference Russia will carry out all the international obligations to which she is committed, Leon Trotzky, commissar for war in the Soviet Government, declared today. He said Russia is anxious to enter into a [illegible] agreement with the United States.

It looks as though Genoa probably will result in failure, he said. "But Russia will assure guarantees for private economic initiative. The Moscow government will show European and American capital that the Soviet republic is an established fact.

"In view of the large resources in the United States Russia is most interested in reaching an economic understanding with that country.

SHOULD FILMS BAR BIGAMIST VALENTINO?

Should Rudolph Valentino, handsome moving picture star, idol of girl film fans the country over, be barred from the movies?

Valentino is a bigamist.

He married Winifred Hudnut while not legally divorced from his wife, Jen Acker Valentino, screen actress.

Should Valentino meet the fate of Fatty Arbuckle and Peggy Joyce, both barred from the movie world?

Write your opinions to the MOVING PICTURE EDITOR, Boston American. Here are two letters already received:

Editor, Boston American: I have been a worshipper of Rudolph Valentino ever since I first saw his work in the "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." He's a handsome devil. I never knew he was married until I read of his bigamous marriage in Mexacali. Now I am disgusted. Throw him out, Will Hayes I say. He is in a class with Arbuckle, Peggy Joyce and the rest of them. They have no respect for flesh or blood or the finer things in life. They are conceited, selfish brutes. Bar Valentino and do it now. Sincerely, Mabel S. P.
Back Bay.

NEVER AGAIN

Editor, Boston American: I was horrified to learn that Rudy Valentino, as my girl friends have always called him, is a bigamist. I suppose I am a silly screen fan, but I was in love with him. I have never missed a picture he has been in. He was my idol. I went to see "The Sheik" and was going again. But not now. I am disgusted. I don't want to say "bar him from the films," because he is human and all humans are victims of mistakes, myself included. But as far as I am concerned he might as well be barred, for I'll never go to see him in a picture again. Very truly yours, Mathilde McM.,

ROSES SOLD TO AID JEWISH SUFFERERS

The drive for funds for the relief of Jewish war sufferers opened today by the sale of roses at many points in the downtown sections. Fully 3,000 young people, most of whom were college students, were posted on street corners, in elevated and subway stations and in office building lobbies, selling the flowers.

The committee in charge of the flower day consists of Felix Vorenberg, chairman; Mrs. Eli Feibelman, Mrs. I. K. E. Prager, Mrs. Harry Liebman, Ludwig Wiseman, Dr. Philip Castleman, Arnold Hartman and Maynard L. Ginsberg. Those in charge of the districts are: North Station, Mrs. N. A. Polensky; Boston Common, Mrs. J. Schwartz; retail business, Mrs. Richard Ackerman; South Station, Mrs. Harry Mock; Coolidge Corner, Brookline, Mrs. M. Rimbach, Mrs. L. Mintz; Rowe's Wharf, Mrs. L. E. Lasky; Boston Elevated, Mrs. Charles Coffman, all other traffic sectors, Mary Golden, outlying sectors, L. M. Brody and William Berman.

MARY YOUNG TO BECOME MOVING PICTURE STAR

Mary Young, known to thousands of patrons of the old Castle Square Theatre, and one of Boston's most popular stage stars, is to enter the movies. She will conclude her career on the legitimate stage this Summer after filling a contract with "We Girls" in Chicago.

Mary Young.

She is now appearing in "Common Clay" at the Malden Auditorium. This is the last play in which she will appear in this vicinity. In filmdom she will be starred by one of the largest producing companies on the West coast.

NAVY RECRUITING IN BOSTON IS RESUMED

Lieutenant-Commander C. A. Lucas of the Boston naval recruiting station announced today that he had orders from Washington to enlist apprentice seamen, following a long halt in recruiting.

ELOPERS ARE WED; CHARGE IS DROPPED

William Edwin Austin, twenty-year-old Somerville eloper, and Miss Alma Leverone of Medford, who fled with him to New York on May 5, and whose elopement was spoiled by the arrest in New York of young Austin and the charge of abducting the girl, have been married.

They are back in Medford at the home of the bride's father, Frank Leverone, No. 23 Yale street.

Ordered by the irate father of the girl to keep silent, neither Austin nor his bride would divulge details of their exciting trip that ended when the fathers of the eloping pair arrived in New York, rescued young Austin from the Tombs and insisted on a hasty wedding.

The young groom showed himself to be a man of parts when he found himself faced with a hotel bill of $75. Questioned about the bill Austin smiled and stated that he did not worry about that.

"The manager of the hotel was a good sport," he said. "We flipped a coin to see whether I owed him $150 or nothing. I won. The bill was cancelled."

The little bride laughed gleefully and looked proudly at her husband as he told how he solved his financial difficulties.

"We will not let the unpleasantness of the trip interfere with our future happiness," declared Austin, an he was seconded in his remarks by the bride.

The bride is a rosy-cheeked brunette with laughing black eyes. As she stood by her young husband's side filled with excitement of the trip, she showed no sign of the worry that must have been hers when young Austin was sent to jail. She declared she had been so blinded by the excitement at the time that she hardly realized she was married.

BANKER KILLS MARRIED WOMAN AND HIMSELF

Indian Lake, N. Y., May 17.—Walter Woods, forty-five years old, former vice-president of a bank at Broadalbin, N. Y., shot and killed Mrs. Charlotte Duell, twenty-five years old, also of Broadalbin, here and then killed himself.

Woods and Mrs. Duell registered at a local hotel on Sunday as Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ward. They were accompanied by Mrs. Duell's two-year-old daughter. Woods is survived by a wife and two children.

CARDINAL AIDS DRIVE FOR NEAR-EAST RELIEF

Cardinal O'Connell, a member of the Massachusetts Committee on Near-East Relief, has issued an appeal to Catholics of this district to contribute toward the cause. The appeal is continued in a letter to Dr. William A. The Cardinal himself has given $100 to the fund.

FOUR NABBED IN NINE-HOUR MAN HUNT

By Associated Press.

New York, May 17.—Four suspected burglars were arrested in a loft building at Fifth avenue and Twentieth street today in one of the most spectacular man hunts staged here in years.

The police searched for more than nine hours for the quartet, meanwhile throwing a cordon of [illegible] around the blocks bounded by Broadway, Nineteenth street, Fifth avenue and Twentieth street. All traffic was diverted while the hunt was progressing.

Detectives had crossed roofs into a fourth-story window of the building. Suddenly they were attacked in the dark. They returned the fire.

Two of the burglars were caught on the fourth floor. The other two, sliding down the greased elevator cables, were overpowered in the basement.

The robbers were believed to have been after $120,000 reported to be stored [illegible] in the drygoods house of Calhoun, Robbins & Co. The building is protected by burglar alarm system.

Detectives, tipped off two weeks ago, allowed the robbers plenty of time to bore through the side of the building, hoping to catch the band red handed.

PINCHOT WINS, SECRETARY OF G. O. P. SAYS

Philadelphia, May 17.—Governor Sproul issued a statement today in which he conceded Gifford Pinchot's victory.

By Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 17.—"Gifford Pinchot has apparently won the Republican nomination for Governor on the face of the unofficial returns," W. Harry Baker, secretary of the State Republican committee, declared today.

"Unless Allegheny County gives a larger majority than my advices indicate, then there is no doubt that Pinchot carried the State," the statement said. Returns from 5,693 districts out of 7,934 in the State gave Auditor General George E. Alter a majority of [illegible] over Pinchot. Figures [illegible] 424 out of 1,430 in Philadelphia [illegible] 70 out of 1,316 in Allegheny, which includes Pittsburgh, gave Alter 47,553 and Pinchot 405[illegible].

"I'm confident I have won the nomination," Pinchot said.

Returns from 5910 districts out of 7934 for the Republican nomination for United States Senator to fill the unexpired Penrose term gave Senator George Wharton Pepper a majority of 190,419 over Congressman-at-large W. J. Burke.

The Great Master Salesman

ADVERTISING is a great Master Salesman, working all the business hours, through the evenings and far into the night. It never lays off. It works all the time, and with splendid results for those who know how to use it.

It helps the business house, saving all its costs, and more, by reducing other sales expense. It informs the public, and makes buying easier and safer.

Today, definite knowledge of advertising is urgently important to business men, for times have changed.

We are selling goods on a gradual falling market. We must move goods rapidly. Alert business men are revising their advertising methods—and several thousand such men, experts through practical experience, will gather at the great

Eighteenth Annual Convention
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS OF THE WORLD
Milwaukee, June 11 to 15, 1922

THERE, they will discuss advertising and other sales problems in the light of present day needs. They will tell how they are meeting new conditions. And you are invited. Again this year, membership in the Association is not necessary to attendance.

Exhibits of foreign and domestic advertising—visualizing the methods by which others have made advertising more productive—will help point the way. And there will be opportunity to seek answers to your individual problems in sessions of the convention.

The central location of Milwaukee, its wonderful transportation facilities and the fact that June is Wisconsin's ideal month, insure a very large attendance.

Police Chief in R. I. Town Ousted As "Useless"

West Warwick, R. I., May 17.—The textile strike was injected into politics at the financial town meeting. It was voted to abolish the office of Chief Josephat Sebert, the clerk of the police commission and the superintendent of vehicles. The first two officers named were declared "worse than useless" in a resolution introduced by P. S. Quinn, Democratic National Committeeman.

Disfavor of Sebert's activities during the strike is reflected in the resolution adopted ordering the town treasurer not to pay any salaries to the three officers.

Quinn declared $10 is being paid political leaders on each barrel of beer turned out by Rhode Island breweries.

MORE OPINIONS ON DAYLIGHT SAVING

Editor Boston American:

I arise every morning at 6. I have the fresh morning air by which to walk to work, and also I can do my housework when I get home in the evening, without the use of electric light, which costs money.

"SATISFIED," Boston.

Editor, Boston American:

I am a wife and mother of two small children. In the morning I certainly feel better to start the day an hour earlier, as in the heat of Summer the cool morning hours are the only time one can work with ease. At night when hubby comes home we can be through supper and out in the air with the children while it is light.

Also the children can play with their father, whereas before they went to bed so early that Sunday was the only day he really saw them.

MRS. DORIS E. BRADLEY, Providence.

Editor, Boston American:

Don't shut out the sunlight. Now we do our work in the cool of a Summer morning and have a rest in the sunny afternoon. The last hours of a hot, sultry working day are the most oppressive.

J. M. R., West Medway.

Editor, Boston American.

I suppose this thing will go on until "Government by the people and for the people" is in some way made real when they are given the privilege of voting on all matters concerning themselves. I understand that standard time is legal and if people would refuse to observe any other, and refuse to change their own personal and household timepieces the city clocks would look rather inconsistent and in that way, perhaps, there might be some public control of the situation.

Changing the city clocks should be as illegal as putting worthless checks on the market.

I am not a farmer and there are many other objectors who are not farmers. By standard time anyone may arise at midnight, or have their morning rest, and all have the same privilege.

RED SOX OUT TO REVENGE ELEVENTH INNING DEFEAT

WILLIAMS MAKES HIT WITH BOSTON FANS

By NICK FLATLEY

The St. Louis Browns expect to bear the banner for the west all the way through the American League pennant race, and from the way they performed here, their expectations are not what could be called dream-woven. The Browns are a pretty good ball club all the way through, with a punch that demands respect in any sort of compamny

The team can field and hit, and has been getting as much pitching as any other outfit in the league this spring. Manager Lee Fohl has not any outstanding star twirler except Shocker, but he has a bunch of sharpshooters who figure to win more than they lose as a steady process, and it's on general strength and no particular weakness that the present opponents of the Red Sox are basing their hopes.

"We didn't have any the best of things to start off," explains Manager Fohl, thereby proving he's a regular pilot. "But we've managed to stick up at the top. I have a fighting ball club, with a lot of kick and it's going to be hard to keep that kind of a combination down."

Browns Will Be One, Two, Three All Season

It isn't what you could call wordy but he says plenty when he does chirp. He has his athletes imbued with the victory spirit and unless the carburetor or something flies out of the machine the Browns will be one two three all season

The team finished pretty well up there a year ago after a sluggish start, and brought all the confidence of a fine finish into this season's campaign. As a result the Browns are now within a [illegible] of the peak and likely to be perching there before many more days

Shocker the star flinger was pretty well bombarded by the Sox to open the series but he managed to win out which is what the averages require. The invaders showed they could fight up from the rack, and will undoubtedly make life very interesting for the Duffy horde for the next three days

Herb Pennock Will Pitch for the Red Sox Today

If the regular succession of pitchers is followed [illegible] Pennock will be in there for the Sox this afternoon and the [illegible] figures to give the other fellows more trouble than any other Boston pitcher. [illegible] Williams and [illegible] three of the best St. Louis stickers swing from the off side of the saucer and are likely to be bothered by Pennock's stuff quite a bit

The big attraction of the evening will be staged in Reading where King Bader former Red Sox twirler and [illegible] will appear with the St. Andrews nine of Forest Hills district. The Saints have tucked one ball away already in the win column and will fight all the harder to keep the lead

From what the Reading management says [illegible] and the whole town turning out there will be amusements galore for the opening. His team is making its first start.

BINGHAM SHOULD HAVE CLASSY RELAY NEXT YEAR

Harvard's freshman track team was easily defeated by the Eli yearlings last Saturday, but it might be well for the Yale varsity track coaches to keep an eye on several of the Crimson prospects. Harvard showed up particularly strong in the distance runs, Jones winning the 880, [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] the two mile [illegible]. These three boys offer Bill Bingham some real material for his two-mile relay team of next year. It is well known that Bingham's pet ambition is to develop a two-mile relay team capable of outrunning the Blue.

Sonny Foley Busts Ankle and Is Out of Game

The strength of the Boston College infield will be considerably weakened by the loss of "Sonny" Foley, the star third sacker of the Maroon and Gold team. In the fourth inning of yesterday's game against Norwich, Foley broke his ankle sliding to third base. Foley was removed to his home after the game, and he will be out of the game for the remainder of the season. His place will probably be filled by McIntire.

BRAVES TAKE ON CUBS IN CHICAGO SERIES

Chicago, Ill., May 17.—"Nappy" Mitchell came back to the scenes of his former conquests today, bringing with him the Braves who yesterday earned an even break by spanking the Pirates in a fiercely fought twelve-round battle at Pittsburgh, 7 to 5.

The Tribe will be parked in these parts until Saturday night, meeting Bill Killefer's rebuilt Cubs in a four-game series, and judging from the recent performances of the home guards the Mitchmen will have their troubles while sojourning here

By trimming the Giants yesterday 3 to 2 the Cubs gained a fifty-fifty cut with the World's Champions, and they threaten to fatten up on the Back Bay invaders.

Either Oeschger or Hugh McQuillan Will Pitch

Mitch had two of his ablest gunners primed for the slabbing assignment today, and indicated that he would send either Joe Oeschger or Handsome Hughey McQuillan to the turret. He was forced to work his pitching corps overtime during the four battles with the Pirates and may be at a disadvantage for a day or two against the Killefer klan

The Cub tactician announced he would call on Percy Lee Jones his solitary southpaw, for pitching duty today. The Oklahoma rubber king worked impressively against the Braves on a few occasions last season. His work is much improved this year, despite the fact he has been unable to pad his record in the winning column.

What do YOU Think About Honoring Great Bambino?

Babe Ruth gets back into the news with both feet when he clashes with Ken Williams in a batting duel at the Polo Grounds on Saturday.

There are a whole lot of folks in Boston and New England who won't get an opportunity to hop over to big Broadway for the fireworks. They will have to wait until June 22 to get a glimpse of the Bambino of Swat in action.

On that day the Yankees play the Red Sox at Fenway Park.

What would YOU want to have done so that Ruth will receive fitting honor when he parades out there to the home plate carrying his home run bludgeon?

John B. Gillooly, sporting editor of the Boston American, is anxious to find out what YOU fans think about a little Babe Ruth celebration. Send along your suggestions to the Sporting Editor, Boston American, No. 82 Summer street.

HARD CAMPAIGN FOR WILLIE JACKSON

New York, May 17.—Doc Bagley has mapped out a strenuous campaign for Willie Jackson, his sensational lightweight. He is anxious to pit him against White, Dundee and Tendler, leading up to a match for the world's title with Benny Leonard

"Jackson holds the distinction of being the only boy to knock out Johnny Dundee," says Bagley, "and also the distinction of having floored Tendler for the long count twice in Philadelphia, where the southpaw reigns. Tendler was knocked out cold, but they allowed his handlers to throw water on him, a flagrant violation of the rules

With half the regular infield out of the game, Boston College will face Providence College for the second time this afternoon at Alumni Field. The loss of "Sonny" Foley who broke his ankle in yesterday's game, is a serious blow to the Maroon and Gold nine, and may injure the chances of the Heights team in its fight for the Catholic college championship

Ted Palmer's injury is not of a serious nature, and he may play his regular berth in the game against Villanova on Saturday

McIntire or Dowd will play third in Foley's place. Both are second [illegible] but will be groomed for Foley's place by Coach Henrikson. Both Dowd and McIntire are good fielders and dependable batters, and [illegible] should make a presentable showing [illegible]

LARGE ENTRY LIST FOR ST. JOSEPH'S SHOW

By JACK CONWAY.

The class of our amateur boxers will toss left hooks and right-hand smashes through the well-known ozone at the Boston Arena tonight in an effort to win one of the junior championships. The show will be staged under the direction of the St. Joseph's T. A. Society and is expected to furnish as much action as one gets at half a dozen professional tournaments.

There will be tussles at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 170 pounds and also in the heavyweight division.

President Billy Cuddy of the St. Joseph's Club announces that more entries have been received for tonight's contests than there were for the New England championships. This means that there will be battling until the wee hours of the morning.

The winners in the various classes will represent New England at the national junior championships which will be staged at Madison Square Garden, New York on May 4 and [illegible]. Naturally our rugged New England ring men are eager to make the trip to Big Broadway

There will be popular prices of 50 cents to $2 for tonight's show, which should make a hit with the fans. Reservations may be secured at the B. A. A., Boston Arena and at Room 12, No. 28 School street

HEAVYWEIGHT

The Faneuil A. C. will show [illegible] eighty of lightweights at [illegible] big show at Mechanics Building, Friday night. Four ten-round bouts between some of the best boys in the country should result in a capacity crowd

Matchmaker Johnny McGann also made a hit with the fans by announcing that some new ring stars would be on the bill. The appearance of Johnny Shugrue of Worcester against Joe Tiplitz of Philadelphia has aroused considerable interest. Shugrue has proved a sensation in his tussels in Worcester rings. His recent victory over Johnny Dundee stamps him as one of the best lightweights in the East.

Tiplitz does not need any introduction to Boston fans. He has engaged in some of his best battles in local [illegible]. In his last appearance here, he battled ten torrid rounds with Dundee. The latter won a questionable decision.

Clonie Tait, Canadian lightweight champion, will make his Boston debut in a tussle with Johnny Clinton, New England lightweight boss. Tait is under the management of Leo Flynn who says his new protege is shooting for Benny Leonard's crown. Clinton has had a good layoff and so should be right for the fray.

Johnny Frazetti of Brockton, who recently stopped South Boston Johnny Downes, will get a shot at Pete [illegible], New York. Hartley is one of those rough, tough fellows who always keeps moving forward and is sure to give the Brockton youth a busy evening

[illegible] one of the best of the California lightweights, will [illegible] Willie Gradwell of Somerville [illegible] another ten session affair. VAN HEUSEN
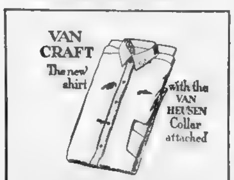
PATENTED
the World's Smartest COLLAR

BECAUSE it has a dressy dignity no other collar can equal, men who scorned soft collars are wearing the VAN HEUSEN. Its trim and stylish appearance is woven and tailored into it, not starched nor ironed into it.

Men who want ease and comfort before all else insist that the VAN HEUSEN is the coolest, the easiest and the most comfortable collar they ever wore.

And they are attracted to it also because it is as easy to launder as a handkerchief and out-wears half a dozen ordinary collars.



VAN CRAFT
The new shirt
with the VAN HEUSEN Collar attached

THE collar-attached shirt is more in evidence this Spring than ever before. And now that the VAN CRAFT adds to the ease of the negligee shirt the smartness and the comfort of the VAN HEUSEN Collar, men who never before wore collar-attached shirts find the VAN CRAFT irresistible.

PRINCETON WILL GET HARVARD'S MEASURE IN DUAL MEET

AND TAKE "BIG THREE" TRACK TITLE

This is the first of the two important track meet forecasts to be made this week by Charles E. Parker, the Boston American's college sports editor and expert.

In tomorrow's issues of the Boston American he will name the men, who, in his estimation, should score places in the big New England Intercollegiate games at Worcester Polytech's athletic field in Worcester.

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

The "Big Three" track title goes to the winner of the annual Prince-on-Harvard dual meet at Princeton on Saturday, and it sure looks like Tiger day.

It is true the Tigers will not offer ...e Burke of the Crimson such ...ugh opposition in the one mile ...n as Yale presented, thus ...nabling him to hold his big shot ...r the half mile duel with Johnson ...ho two Saturdays ago nosed out ...mmy Campbell of the Elis in a ...etty speedy 880, and who may have ...e assistance of one or two other ...ble Tigers.

But Harvard will face sprinters ...ho appear the equals or superiors ...f the recent Yale visitors, a quarter-...er who holds the national title, ...ree hurdlers who will cut in on ...nts to a much greater extent than ...t the Eli timber toppers, two high ...mpers who have exceeded the best ...he Harvard performers have made; ...t least one broad jumper who is a ...ot or more better than the Crimson ...mpers, and an array of weight and ...eld event men capable of halving ...e points in those numbers if not ...f gaining the major portion of such ...nters.

...wo Mile Run May ...ive Harvard a Shut Out

Just what will happen in the two ...le run is something for the meet ...o reveal. The Elis shut out the Tig-...r two-milers in the Yale-Princeton ...al meet, while in the Harvard-...e distance run, Lund of the ...mson finished a very-much-delay-...third. The last named will rule ...e favorite because of that show-...g and it is barely possible Har-...rd will score a shutout in the ...ent.

The real contests of the meet ...ould come in the sprints; the 880, ...high hurdles, the low hurdles, ...e hammer throw, the discus throw ...d the javelin throw.

...eird Picking by Judges ...n the Eli-Princeton Century

Bill Bingham, the Harvard coach, ...ecently informed us that there was ...e rather weird picking by the judges in the Yale-Princeton century dash, and that in reality Don Lourie of the Tigers, who was not awarded a place, was the first man to finish, that McKim of Princeton, and Rusnack and Feldman of Yale, came home in positions much different than those awarded them by the judges.

If such were the case, it would appear that Chase, Wanaker and Clark, the Crimson headliners, who trailed the Elis last week, will be up against a much stiffer problem on Saturday in that particular event.

The one minute, 57 3-10 seconds, scored by Johnson of Princeton in his battle with Tommy Campbell, indicates that Tiger to be a worthy foe of Burke, Harvard's star. It was Campbell's belief after the race that Johnson had traveled just about as fast as Johnson could, so if Tommy's judgment is O. K., Burke should prove the winner of Saturday's race.

Conger May Make Feature Event of the Mile Run

Conger, the Princeton miler, never was in the running with Douglas of Yale two weeks ago, but his spurt down the back stretch carried him past Wilson of Yale into second position. It is possible he will start such a sprint earlier in his one-mile duel with Burke, and if he maintains it, this, too, may be added to the feature events of the meet.

In the field events the Fiske Brown-Pink Baker clash in the hammer throw holds the greatest interest. Baker, the Tiger star defeated the Crimson captain at the Pennsylvania relay carnival, and is out to repeat that victory. Brown, however, has made a better competitive throw than has yet been recorded by the Princeton man, and unless he fails of expectations he will nose out Keane Fitzpatrick's star.

CORNELL'S NINE WILL PLAY HARVARD

Harvard will take on Cornell on the diamond at Soldiers Field tomorrow at four o'clock.

Herb Russell, of Methuen, who twirled the much discussed Amherst game last Saturday, will be on the mound for Harvard with Murphy on the receiving end. The battery for Cornell will be Wolff and Tone.

It will be interesting to watch Eddie Kaw, Cornell's All-American halfback performing out in left field. Two of the world's greatest gridiron stars will be in the same box if Kaw gets a run for when he arrives at first he will meet the logical contender for his All-American throne in George Owen.

Now that Harvard has rid itself of bad baseball, the Crimson enthusiasts expect their team to begin another run of unbroken victories.

GOLF

By F. G. THAYER.

Commonwealth opens its course today to M. G. A. golfers and look for a record crowd, as the weather outlook is favorable. There are five divisions of match play for Thursday and Friday and prizes for the two low gross and net medal cards.

The Salem event follows on Friday and Saturday, the affair being a four-ball best-ball event with net and gross prizes. Players may engage starting time for either day.

Jock MacAndrew and Eddie Lowery played off their tie at Wollaston yesterday for the first gross prize offered in the recent Wollaston medal play tournament, when they both returned cards of 78. MacAndrew's consistent golf was too much for the former junior champion, and the card of the former, a 77, comprised eleven fours, one three and six fives. Lowery had an 83. It will be recalled that in the recent open in which these two tied for top honors, MacAndrew had a wonderful 36 out in a strong wind only to fall by the wayside with a 42 coming in. Yesterday he reversed his 36 and did not acquire a scoring mood until the inward nine, when he reeled off 4 5 3 5 5 5 4 4 4.

Norfolk's new clubhouse was completed according to contract in exactly eight weeks from the time the ground was broken. The dining service is in charge of Steward Jimmie McGuire.

Eddie McPhail and the new green-keeper have made some much needed improvements on the fairways. The ground on the left of the clubhouse near the road where a good drive generally found an unfair lie has been harrowed, reseeded and thoroughly dressed with rich loam and fertilizer. The same treatment has been given to the fairgreen in front of the fifth greens that the pitched ball (in the future) to this green will be more likely to stick.

The fifth and other greens have also been airated, re-seeded, top-dressed and constantly watered to that a much better putting surface is now assured.

From any angle one views the new clubhouse, it is attractive. The interior is of the bungalow unfinished type. A large locker room in the basement with new showers is a decided improvement on the service given at the old building. Al Rydstrom left no room for criticism in the plans he made to provide for the members' comfort, not forgetting the ladies. The ladies' parlor and locker room adjoins the main dining room on the first floor.

GREEN NINE IN GAME WITH TIGERS

Hanover, N. H., May 17.—Dartmouth's baseball team has gone to Princeton, where it tackles the Tiger nine today. Twelve men made the trip, which lasts for four days and includes games with Wesleyan, Seton Hall and Columbia, as well as with Princeton.

Four pitchers, Capt. Tracy, Lyons, Steinhilber and Meehan were taken by Coach Tesreau. Lyons will probably open against Princeton, with Tracy on the mound against Wesleyan.

Meehan is the former Harvard freshman twirler, who came back last week defeating Norwich in the first game. He has pitched for two years.

Dartmouth has already met and defeated Columbia twice this season.

One change has been made in the team since the last game with Heep going behind the bat in place of Seavey, who has not been hitting the ball well.

B. U. STUDENTS ON OUTING AT RIVERSIDE

Boston University students will make merry today at Riverside. A variety of track and field events are carded for the forenoon, consisting of running races for girls and men, high and broad jumps, weight events and volley ball.

Special races have been arranged for members of the faculty. Water sports are carded for the afternoon, with swimming races and canoe tilting contests as feature attractions. Following will be baseball games between class teams.

BENNY VALGER GETS AN OFFER TO FIGHT CRIQUE

New York, May 17.—Frankie Casale, manager of Johnny Valger, who will meet Johnny Reisler Saturday, is in receipt of a cablegram from Marcel Duprey, chairman of the Fistique Club de Paris, France, offering Valger $15,000 to participate in three ring bouts including one with Eugene Crique for the European featherweight title in July.

GREB STARTS TRAINING FOR BOUT WITH TUNNEY

New York, May 17.—Harry Greb has started training for his 15-round tilt with Gene Tunney for the light heavyweight championship next Tuesday night.

Tunney is training at Red Bank, N. J. He likes to work in the open air. He will not be in New York until the day of the contest when he weighs in at 2 p.m.

DORCHESTER CLUB DOES COMEBACK AND TRIUMPHS

Dorchester club defeated the South Boston All-Stars 4 to 2 at the Dorchester Town Field before fully 6,000 fans. The hitting of Buck Hayes, who drove in two runs with a slashing double, broke up a perfectly good baseball game.

Bowling Duel at Arlington

Arlington is all het up over the candlepin match between Jim Whalen and Paul Phoeler, which will take place at the Arlington alleys on Thursday evening. Both bowlers are rated among the country's best.

Senators Turn in Triple Killing in Ninth.

The Senators turned in the second triple play of the season in the American League, though they failed to halt the onward rush of the Tigers. Oldham was on second and Blue on first in the ninth, when Haney lined to Second Baseman Harris. Harris shot the pill to Judge at first, doubling up Blue, and Joe got the apple to Peck before Oldham could return to the bag.

TWO SCHOOL TITLES ARE AT STAKE

By FRED C. LANE.

Two championship titles are at stake in the scholastic baseball games today. Cambridge Latin and Rindge Tech, both members of the Suburban League, will battle for the Cambridge title.

The Catholic High championship is at stake in the St. James-St. John's Prep clash at Danvers.

Both games have been looked forward to by supporters of scholastic sports with great interest.

The Cambridge tilt at Russell Field brings out the largest crowd of the season. It is the contest that the coaches try hardest to win. Neither Cambridge team is a championship nine, but the rivalry insures the most rabid fan a real hot contest.

St. James High of Haverhill has a fast, snappy team that has won several of its games by large scores. It considers the only defeat, by B. C. High one of the breaks of the game.

St. John's Prep is represented by a fair team.

St. James is picked to win.

Malden Tigers May Pin Defeat on Newton Leaders

Nothing has been left undone by Coach Jack McDonald of Malden High to pin a defeat on Newton, leader of the Suburban League. That game is played at Malden today. Coach Allie Dickinson and his Newton contingent have much respect for the Malden Tigers, who have upset the best schools in this section.

Malden is a fighting organization. The game is never over until the last man is out, is the belief of this squad. For this reason Newton High has a game ahead of it that may upset the present standing of the league.

First Clash Between Malden and Newton

It will be the first time that the Garden City boys have had to meet this peppery team and Howard Whittemore, sterling hurler of Newton, will be sent to the slab to subdue the Tigers. Newton's seat on top of the pile is not any to secure. Medford, Somerville and Cambridge Latin are all holding second place waiting to step into the upper berth should Newton lose.

For this reason Coach Allie Dickinson will put on his best array taken to score a victotry. The Malden nine has been working harder than ever to duplicate the feat of Cambridge Latin, the first to score a win over Newton.

Medford and Somerville will lock horns at Dilboy Field, Somerville, and what a game it should be. Both teams are tied up for second place in this year's hectic fight. Medford has shown marked improvement in all games played to date while Somerville gave up a contest on Saturday to Newton.

Charlie Odams, the best bet at Medford is in fine fettle for this clash. Danny McFayden of Somerville has rested up sufficiently after Saturday's matinee to show in his best form.

HARVARD SECONDS WIN FROM TIGER SECONDS

The Harvard second baseball team, with the aid of Bob Shugrue, who has hurled for the varsity, defeated the Princeton second team at Soldiers Field yesterday, 5 to 2.

Each pitcher allowed eight hits, but Harvard, with the aid of seven errors on the part of the Black and Orange, mounted up the score in the second and fourth innings.

Princeton threatened in the second and third, making one run in each inning, which proved to be its total.

Shugrue and Keegan were the Harvard battery, while Stuber and Murphy took turns on the mound for Princeton, with Fisher and Schrady alternating on the receiving end.

CASEYS PUT ST. JOSEPH'S OF SOMERVILLE IN REAR

North Cambridge Knights of Columbus set the St. Joseph's C. A. of Somerville into last place of the Twilight League when they handed out victory, 11 to 5. The Knights drove the ball to all sections of its field.

I don't claim these goods are $40 value because I don't know by what standard $40 value might be measured in clothing. I do say that they are 13 to 14 oz. in weight, double and twisted worsted both ways, absolutely all wool, and no tailor in the country advertises this make of goods under $40 for a suit of clothes.

I don't care if you are sixty around the breast, I am going to turn these fifty pieces of Blue Serge in the next thirty days, and would suggest your calling or sending a 2c stamp for samples and simple system of self measurement and I will make a suit to your measure that I can positively guarantee for wear and service.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED COUPLE

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1922, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"OH, my dear!" I said, running around the table to put my arms about her. "My dear—don't—please don't! It isn't as bad as all that. Truly, it isn't."

"Anne!" cried Carlotta, seizing my hand and laying her face against it.

Just then Bertha's voice sounded from the doorway

"Lyons, if you please, Mrs. Harrison. I took him into the library as you told me to do."

"Please tell Lyons I will see him in a few minutes," I said to Bertha.

Then I gave a quick, reassuring pat to the burning cheek beneath my hand.

"Lyons, Tony's chauffeur, is here to see me. He's the man who used to drive our car in the days when Jim and I owned one. He wants to see me about a matter on which he's helping me. Perhaps I'll come back from my interview with news of Tom."

Just why I said this I don't know. I suppose it was because I couldn't bear to leave Charlotte without some word of comfort. I'd never before seen the big, splendid, self-reliant girl go so completely to pieces. Somehow it gave me the sense of embarrassment I suppose I'd feel if some one's pet Newfoundland were to try to sit in my lap.

Carlotta smiled wanly. Then got up to her superb height and said quietly:

"Forget me, Sister Anne. I guess I need a storm to—get a lot of things out of my system. You'll find the old Carlotta back pretty soon, I think. I feel her getting ready to push through the sod."

I went across to the library where I found Lyons standing respectfully and with an air of not being quite at ease.

"Good evening, Lyons," I said, adding as I sank into the cushiony couch, "sit down, Lyons."

"Oh, no, ma'am, I couldn't!" he cried, the training of years protesting against such a liberty in the presence of a lady. So, knowing that he was far more comfortable in the standing position he felt it due me for him to take, I said no more.

Start Tomorrow

"I'm going to start off tomorrow, ma'am, to pick up Mr. Norreys' trail and fetch him back in the car. Guess he's had enough of the railway."

"So that's why Pat bought his car," I murmured without thinking.

"No, ma'am. Mr. Dalton, he told me that he had a chance to get a car at a great bargain—leastways Mrs. Dalton picked up the chance. So he said I was to have the car and my time to myself again. Ordinarily I'd have reported to you, Mrs. Harrison—but begging your pardon, I had something more important."

"Of course," I replied. "Naturally you had to put the car in order for Mr. Norreys' tour back to homelands."

"No, ma'am—that wasn't it. I don't think he'd have asked for his own car to call for him. Only I telegraphed him that the Daltons had a limousine and you were running a car too, so wouldn't he like for me to call for him somewhere along the line. It were a liberty. But I take a most personal interest in Mr. Norreys, ma'am. And it certainly appears to me that he needs to be took care of like a child when it comes to his own interests. For he never seems to consider them a-tall."

"You're quite right, Lyons," I replied, smiling wistfully at this modern example of the old-fashioned loyal servitor who was a living proof of the power there is in men to come back and reclaim themselves. "And I suppose Mr. Norreys was delighted to fall in with the suggestion, though, as you've said, he would never have thought of it for himself."

"His telegram were very [illegible]ing, ma'am. I took the liberty of keeping it to show you. Here it is, if you please."

I read a message fairly redolent of Tony's crisp personality and the twinkle in his ice-blue eyes:

"Jolly of you to think of me. Since every one's so splendidly fixed come along with car and meet me Thursday noon at Whitestone. A. Norreys."

"That still gave me several days, ma'am, after I'd put the car in fine shape. And something or other made me think it would be a good move to play off innocent and drive up the river to pay my respects to Slim Darrow. Perhaps I had no real right to take the car. But I felt 'twas right—so I goes ahead and follows my notion. And I'll never be sorry I did, Mrs. Harrison. Nor will you."

Pulled Up Short

Lyons hauled himself up short and studied me thoughtfully. It was as if he were measuring me and deciding how it would be best to let me have the news.

"Tell me exactly what happened," I said. "I'm prepared for any amount of venom on the part of Slim Darrow."

"I never got as far as Slim," returned Lyons. "I wouldn't have dared go up them gray walls—even for you, Mrs. Harrison. Though I'd try hard enough if there was any reason I had to—for you. But I know a go-between up there, so I thought I'd take a run up and see what he could tell

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

—By W. F. Kirk—

WE had a awful hard lesson today, it was about Suspended Animashun. I thought first the teecher sed Suspender, but she dident, she sed Sus-pended.

I asked Pa about it wen I calm hoam & Pa sed Yes, Bobbie, sed Pa, there is such a thing as that.

Well, I sed, what is it then?

It is kind of hard to ex-plane to a kid, sed Pa. It seems to me thay are pushing you ahed kind of fast in yure skool, Bobbie, sed Pa.

Are you quite sure you know what it is? sed Ma to Pa.

Why, certainly, sed Pa.

Then tell Bobbie, sed Ma.

I will tell him quick enuff, sed Pa. One mite think from the way you are looking at me that I doant know what it is, Sus-pended Animashun, sed Pa. I knowed that wen I was fifteen yeers old, sed Pa.

Then tell Bobbie, sed Ma.

I will tell him, sed Pa. But after this I wish you wuddent put such a low Ester-mashun on my Nolege, sed Pa. It kind of hurts me to think that my own wife gives me credit for so littel nolledge, Pa sed. You used to look up to me & think I was a Ency-sl-peedy, Pa sed.

Well, Bobbie, sed Pa, I will tell you here & now, sed Pa. Sus-pended animashun is sumthing like a Transt, sed Pa.

What is a Transt, sed me to Ma.

A Transt is a short naim for Sus-pended Animashun, sed Pa.

Is that cleer, Bobbie? sed Ma to me. Ma was kind of laffing. I doant know was she laffing at, Pa or at me.

That is clear as tar, I sed.

You are vary dense if you do not grasp my meening, sed Pa.

Meening what? sed Ma. You haven't toald the child yet what Sus-pended Animashun is, sed Ma.

May be you wud rather tell him, sed Pa.

I will tell him if I have the extreem pleshur for onst in my life, sed Ma, of heering you admit that you doant know everything, sed Ma.

You tell him, sed Pa.

No, sed Ma, I will not tell him until I find out if you know yourself

Vary well, sed Pa, I will explain it to Bobbie. Bobbie, sed Pa, sumtimes thay brake upen a big rock in a stone quarry & find inside of the rock a littel tode, sed Pa, which has been alive in that rock for maybe hunders of yeers, sed Pa. That is Sus-pended Animashun

A other case of it, sed Pa, is a married woman's face wen she is smiling & laffing with sum of her friends & her husband cums hoam to dinner & all the ladies shut up, that is Suspended Animashun too, sed Pa.

I guess Pa is a wise old Geezer after all.

The Queen of the May

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

IN other words, "Spring has came"; and her name is Flora. High on a branch of the Tree of Heaven, the good God's own fruit tree, on a branch spangled with blossoms and knobbed with the fat green and rose pads of the yet unopened buds, soft and sweet as little sachets, swings Flora.

All the little pink and gold, fat and merry angels gave her a push, with "good luck to you," and sent her flying out over the tickled-to-death world, high in the sky, the exquisite, thin blue of the sky, the bluebell sky of Spring, among the trailing chiffon of the frail white Spring-clouds. The gentle cattle in the wide meadows know she is swinging there, for the tender cool grass that they munch.

The lover knows Flora swings gayly out over the world for the fields and the woods and the water call to him and his love, and the forget-me-nots and the lambkins and Love are out, and his love wears a little straw bonnet instead of a fur and brocade chapeau, and out of his sky love-birds sing madly and a million blossoms drift down to light and take root softly in the grass from Flora's wreath-wound swing, her hair and her gown

For all this—and for the fact that geography is the only study that at all intrigues him now because of its tales of far places. For the wanderlust is on him and Spring "has came again"

RHYMING OPTIMIST

—By Aline Michaelis—

"I AM not feeling at my best, although I'm on a diet; the doc says travel—east or west, so I suppose I'll try it. I sit right here from day to day and nothing ever changes; but how I thirst to get away, where something new and strange is! Where folks will come from near and far whenever I start spieling, to ask me what my symptoms are and question how I'm feeling. For, living here in my home town, I'm greatly underrated; when I complain folks only frown, I'm not appreciated." So Jimmy Jinks got on the train to seek some kinder places; but though he tried with might and main, he found few friendly faces. It did not matter where he'd rove while changing every day, poor Jimmy still did not improve the time he spent away. For, out upon the Balkan Sea and in the Alpine Passes, he talked about his nerves and tea, digestion and molasses. He cornered strangers in Hong Kong to chat of pills and potions. He spoke of doctors who were wrong with their new-fangled notions. When sailing down the Zuyder Zee he made companions shiver by chatting of the misery he felt in lungs and liver. And when, at last, he reached his home, his lengthy journey ended, he cried: "Doc said if I would roam, my health would soon be mended But though I've traveled day and night by sea and land and river I find I'm feeling far from right, in fact, I'm worse than ever." Yes though he'd wandered many a day, his quest had not succeeded, the fact was just to get away from Jim was what he needed

Her Good Idea

A little girl in a poor family has to wash a great many dishes. Someone began sympathizing with her one day, remarking what "drudgery" it must be.

"No," she replied. "It's great fun. I have given every dish a name, and they are all my children—my dolls. I talk to them while I am washing them and drying them. I pretend that I am dressing them. I like to have them all nice and clean. And I'm sure they like me for looking after them so well. It's lots of fun."

Household Hints

To clean woolen material, pour about two quarts of boiling water over soap-bark (obtainable at any chemist's). Let it stand until the strength of the bark is taken into the water, pour into lukewarm water after straining, and let the material stand in this water for half an hour, then rub, and rinse in fresh water of the same temperature. Press on the wrong side before it is quite dry.

Daily Short Story

OTHER HUSBANDS

By Ella Randall Pearce.

IT did seem a bit absurd to have a rendezvous with one's husband even at the time that Lila was making nervous preparations for the occasion. But she and Frank had agreed that it was better so. Neither wished to invite any more comment or criticism, which, of course, had been plentiful enough since their separation.

Lila hurried along, thinking feverishly

"It's too bad it came to this—when we're both comparatively young. Still, it's better to know now how incompatible we are than to drift into miserable middle age or hang together the way some folks do.

No Chains For Her

"Of course, it's all because Frank's so difficult—selfish and high-handed. Only child at home—bachelor till past thirty—lord and master after marriage, in his own opinion."

"No chains for me" thought Lila wrathfully. "And no Dead Sea fruit. We'll settle our affairs amicably and part for good. It's the only way."

What she did not see—what neither of them saw—was a third figure that came upon the scene, crouching and crawling behind the hedges and rustic seats dipping into the shadows, making its way cautiously toward the columned pergola.

And Frank and Lila Peyton, deep in conversation over their personal affairs, drew closer together, talking in low tones

"Of course, I'll always provide for you to the best of my ability, Lila," he told her. "But you must remember it costs more to keep up two homes than one."

"I want it all set down on paper and signed," said Lila. "One never knows what may happen."

"Oh, as to that—if anything happens to me, you are already provided for. My will——"

"But you may marry again," Lila broke in rather breathlessly.

Frank laughed shortly. "Not at all likely," he replied, and Lila winced.

"Why, Lila, you're trembling," her husband said. "Are you cold? It is rather damp and chilly here."

And, at that instant, the third person on the scene, who had been advancing slowly and furtively, reached the pergola and leaped upright. There was a hoarse, muttering cry, a lunge forward, a shot in the dusk, and then frenzied protests of a wild-eyed man that it was all a mistake.

It was an awful mistake, he repeated. He thought the couple in the pergola were his wife and a man she was meeting. A married man, too, he said, and babbled a disappointed story of suspected faithlessness and a passion for revenge.

With Frank in the hospital and his assailant in a cell to await the result of his act of misguided vengeance, Lila at home came slowly back to clear thinking

Gaily Dressed

Lila Peyton was gaily dressed and smiling as she approached her husband's bed in the hospital

"They say you are getting along splendidly, Frank." She placed a bouquet of violets beside his pillow. "I've been so worried. And I've been thinking——"

"Of me?" asked Frank eagerly.

"No. Of other husbands." Lila's laughter rippled softly. "What life might be with some men. She shook her slim shoulders and bent over the bed—"Frank, dear, forgive me for everything," she whispered. "I love you. I never knew how much till I thought I had really lost you."

"Yes, daddy."

"And how do you expect to get her out?"

"Why, Miss Young told me that the world turns round ever day, and when it turns over tomorrow dolly will drop out."

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

AN ABSORBING SERIAL OF LIFE IN CITY

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.

"I WAS just wondering," he confessed, "if you would mind if I stopped at your apartment and drove you across town in my car? I have a patient on the West Side upon whom I call late in the evening anyway."

She was absurdly happy at the idea. She recalled that other drive across the Park one Sunday afternoon with this man. It seemed months ago. She had scarcely known him then.

But she answered demurely "That is very good of you. If you are sure it will be perfectly convenient it will be perfectly convenient, I will be grateful to you for bringing me back here."

"I will explain to Mr. Hollingshead your plans for being absent," he volunteered. "I am to stop in the library to report on the patient's condition."

Life a Complex Matter

Adelaide went on up to her room. She would write at once to Jennie of her plans for to-morrow night and the next day. Her heart was beating fast. Dr. Carter was so good, so understanding! And tomorrow night she would be at home with her little sister. And soon the operation would be over! Would it be successful?

"I would almost rather have her dead than blind!" the girl whispered.

Then she thought of Mrs. Hollingshead. Would it not be better if she were to die?

When she had written her letter, she put on her coat and hat and hurried out to the nearest post box. Dr. Carter's car was standing in front of the house as she left. He was having a long talk with Mr. Hollingshead.

The physician came down the front steps when Adelaide returned from her hasty errand

"Why did you not let me take that letter out for you?" he chided "But perhaps the air did you good You have not been out before today. Suppose"—with a sudden inspiration—"suppose you get into my car and let me give you fifteen minutes' drive through the park? It will do you good."

"I'd love it! But—have you time?"

"Certainly, I have. Are you warmly enough dressed?"

"Certainly I am," she smiled as she stepped into the car. Then she glanced up at the house.

"I may be needed," she suggested. "I told Estelle I was going to run out with a letter—that was all."

"That's all right, for you did not say how far nor how long you would run, did you?" the man retorted teasingly.

Adelaide Brown laughed at John Carter's jesting speech, and, in doing so, surprised herself. It was the first time she had laughed in many days. Her companion smiled down at her as he started his car

"That sounds good," he said "and natural."

"Natural?" she repeated.

"Yes—natural in a girl of your age. How old are you, by the way?"

"Twenty-two."

"And I am thirty-seven. Fifteen years older!"

Wondered Why

He was not smiling now. She wondered why.

"That is just the right age for a doctor, I suppose," she observed "You are not so young as to make mistakes—yet young enough to have many years of work ahead of you."

"The last part of that statement may be right, I hope," he rejoined "But, everybody makes mistakes I am getting very much afraid of some mistakes I may make."

"I did not know you could be afraid of anything," she commented.

"I am," he declared.

"Of what?"

"I may tell you some time," he answered. "Don't forget to ask me."

"When?"

"When I know you better."

They were in the park now. It was twilight, and foggy. The trees were shrouded in a gray mist through which the lamps shone yellow.

"How beautiful it is!" Adelaide sighed happily.

"Yes—it reminds one of a Corot," her companion said.

"Of a—what?" she asked. Then, ashamed of her ignorance, she apologized. "Please excuse me for asking that. But I know so little And I did not understand what you meant."

"I meant that the landscape looks like a picture by a man named Corot," he explained simply.

A Bitter Reflection.

Her cheeks burned with mortification. "Oh!" she burst forth "how I hate my lack of education! I cannot understand the meaning of lots of things that educated people refer to. Art, for instance. I know nothing of it. I give myself away when I try to talk with educated people!"

"You give yourself away, but not in the sense you mean," the man said gravely. He was driving slowly, and watching her face. "You just proved to me something that I have always believed about you—that you are absolutely sincere.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur to Bring Back Color to Hair

That beautiful even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

Can President Harding bear up under the terrific strain of the inordinate number of duties and responsibilities we are now heaping upon our Chief Executive?

I saw a good deal of President Harding at close range during his last week-end outing in New Jersey, and his appearance at once raised that question in my mind.

Frankly, President Harding looked a sad, tired old man. In repose, he looked tired, not to say worried. Oh, yes, he was always ready to respond smilingly to greetings. In this and other respects he played his part very well. That was Harding the President. Harding the man, without his presidential mask, looked fatigued, worn out.

* * *

You may have heard comments—or made comments—about the frequency of President Harding's absences from Washington on pleasure jaunts by yacht, by train, by automobile. Some have remarked that being President evidently couldn't be such a hard job, after all, or Mr. Harding wouldn't be able so often to pack up and leave his office for several days or a week or more at a time.

I am told that these many brief spells of relaxation are not of Mr. Harding's own seeking, but that they have been virtually forced upon him by his medical and other advisers.

Indeed, one hears that there have been times when those closest to the President were seriously perturbed over his condition—more so, perhaps, than he was himself, as he felt it was simply up to him to carry on without question.

Remember that the duties of the President of the United States have multiplied enormously within the last decade. They are now so complicated, so delicate, so burdensome, so wearing, that they are calculated to overwhelm any man of only ordinary mental and physical stamina.

President Roosevelt once declared enthusiastically, "I like my job." He was so constituted, both mentally and physically, that the duties didn't overwhelm him. He was a Trojan and had a faculty of reaching and making decisions with great dispatch.

President Taft had the geniality and the don't-worry characteristics proverbial of the fat man, so that he got through his term without suffering any ill effects.

President Wilson, however, caved in.

Now, is it not time to consider how the duties attached to the Presidency could be greatly lightened without deranging or in anw way injuring our present system of government?

My suggestion would be that the office of Vice-President be made equivalent to the office of vice-president in a large business organization.

Our Cabinet Ministers are heads of departments. Each is concerned only with the affairs coming under his bailiwick, just as are heads of other business corporation.

Almost every president of a large business organization, however, has a vice-president familiar with the general running of the organization and clothed with sufficient powers to enable him greatly to lighten the load of the president. All matters of minor importance passed up by department heads are considered and decided by the vice-president. Many organizations have not one vice-president, but several vice-presidents.

Couldn't there be a drastic recasting of the duties developing upon the vice-president of the greatest organization in the country, the United States Government?

It was all very well to dump every duty, no matter how insignificant or how important, upon the President when the total duties of that office were infinitely fewer than they are today. But changed times, changed conditions, demand a change in the respective tasks of the President and the Vice-President.

We kill our Presidents by overwork, and we allow our Vice-Presidents to do little or nothing.

Isn't this all wrong? Isn't it most unbusinesslike? Isn't it extremely foolish? Doesn't it make for unhappy results in every respect?

Perhaps the President should be left an entirely free hand in deciding which tasks he should pass on to the Vice-President. And, of course, it should be clearly stipulated that the Vice-President would have to take orders from the President and carry them out strictly in accordance with the President's own wishes.

STEELS CLIMB LATE IN THE SESSION

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at the close, although profit taking late in the day reduced gainst. The market was very active, transactions far exceeding a million shares.

Several independent steels climbed in the last hour, when U. S. Steel ranged between its highest and lowest for the day. High record prices were reached by Producers & Refiners and Phillips Petroleum.

Opening strong, the market retained early strength up to noon and crept upward over midday and later, prices being at the highest level in the last hour. Coppers were the forenoon feature, leading the market for the first time in many months. Later in the session steels, motors and some specialties were contestants. The advance took in about everything on the list.

Pool operations were extended. Bears covered shorts contracts to considerable extent and there war more outside demand for stocks, according to reports from various quarters. Talk of merger of copper producing companies was heard. Oil combines were also rumored. Negotiations for the consolidation of independent steel corporations are still in progress. Primary returns from Pennsylvania pleased bulls. While foreign exchange rates eased off, the failure of the Genoa conference had no influence in Wall Street.

Tobaccos were among the strongest stocks and unusually active. Railroads got slight attention, but gained a little on a few transactions.

Call money opened at 3½ per cent. It was said that a considerable amount was loaned outside the exchange at 3 per cent. U. S. Treasury withdrawals from New York banks today totalled $6,000,000.

$2,000,000,000 in silver dollars would weigh 118,571,428½ pounds avoirdupois. It would take 1,976 freight cars of 30 tons capacity to carry such a sum.

645 freight cars of 30 tons capacity would be required to haul $2,000,000,000 in $5.00 gold pieces.

Think of it! The Mines of the United States Have Produced
Two Billion Dollars In Dividends

DO YOU KNOW that the mining industry in the United States has paid nearly $2,000,000,000 in dividends, not including the profits from coal or iron?

To Nevada, the land that God forgot, belongs the distinction of having contributed more than $700,000,000 in precious metals. The Goldfield District alone has produced in excess of $100,000,000 to date, and the end is not yet. The Deep Mines project is expected to unearth much more wealth for those who are courageous enough to go after it.

Opportunity continues to knock at the door of those who are open-minded—of those who can recognize a straightforward, legitimate he-man proposition.

Consider My Position

I am in the unique position of offering for sale, stock in a corporation that is indorsed by local bankers—that has an exceptional rating in Dun and Bradstreet—that owns more than 600 acres of mineral land in the heart of a district from which $100,000,000 has been extracted.

The Goldfield Deep Mines Company has a big cash reserve in its treasury—it has its machinery and equipment on the ground, in operation and paid for. It has no debts, and in addition it has a three compartment, 5x17 foot shaft sunk to a depth of over 1200 feet.

On top of all of this, I have the assurance of Nevada's biggest banker, who is also the largest individual stockholder in this enterprise, that the shaft will be sunk to the proposed depth of 2400 feet, no matter if I never sell another share of the stock.

What the Experts Say

And I haven't told it all. Such progress could not have been made—the co-operation of Nevada's leading financiers, and over 12,000 stockholders could not have been obtained, if the project hadn't warranted their interest.

The Goldfield Deep Mines Company was not launched in a day. Only after eminent geologists, engineers and surveyors had minutely inspected the property and furnished voluminous reports, was actual financing commenced. Over a year was devoted to such work before it was considered wise to proceed.

It is the united opinion of the experts employed, that rich ore will be obtained at depth. Cropping exists across the surface of the property for nearly a mile. A vein system is known to exist to a depth of at least 1400 feet. Such an unanimous opinion merited financial backing.

What Has Been Done Before

Naturally, all such circumstances would have influence, but what has been done in other places under similar conditions also carries great weight.

At Butte, Cripple Creek, Virginia City, Grass Valley, Tonopah, Utah, Idaho, Arizona and South Africa, amazing results were obtained at mines which had been only "scratched" by going on down to greater depth.

I am certain—just as positive as I can be of anything in this world—that in sinking this shaft 2400 feet the Deep Mines Company will strike a vein system that will bring large dividends to its stockholders at regular intervals.

Why You Should Buy Now

The great shaft is being sunk to a depth of 2400 feet upon the advice of those who are authorities in the mining business. The paying ore may be struck at any place below the 1400 foot level. Those who help sink the shaft if rich ore is found will be the ones to profit.

Those who took my advice and bought stock when it was selling at 12½ cents a share, have not regretted their action. I now urge you to buy at the ridiculously low price of 20 cents a share, giving you my word, based on the word of the directors, that as soon as the present allotment at 20 cents a share is disposed of, my price will be raised to 35 cents a share.

It is my candid belief that the present block of stock will be exhausted before the demand has been supplied. I, therefore, suggest that you wire your order and remit by mail.

FROM information I consider absolutely reliable I estimate as a result of Goldfield Deep Mines advertising, investors in New England, New York and Pennsylvania have purchased more than a million shares of stock from brokers who have not made delivery of the certificates to their customers.

If one-quarter of the shares purchased were demanded, my present allotment at 20c would be exhausted and my present quotation of Deep Mines stock would be on the basis of 35c per share.

Further: the money you have paid your broker instead of being used by him in the conduct of his business would be in Deep Mines treasury for development purposes. It is an exhibition of wisdom to have in your possession at this time the securities you have purchased, as a delay may result in the loss of your entire investment.

Demand your Deep Mines certificates today and have them transferred on the books of the company, which will place you in a position where you can sell and profit on any advance in price.

The condition of the mine warrants immediate action and to protect company stockholders I urge you to follow my suggestion: Demand your stock.

NEW ENGLAND INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

The Boston American every day publishes an up-to-the-minute review of industrial conditions throughout New England.

This will be found on the Financial page. Watch for it. Very latest news of labor and capital received from the Boston American's special correspondents and investigators.

While the strike situation in New England remains virtually unchanged the cloth brokers and manufacturers in and about Fall River are closely watching the cotton situation, business having increased markedly in that vicinity within the week.

Prices are showing a strong inclination to harden and the cloth manufacturers are showing a disposition to ignore offers they would have snapped up ten days or two weeks ago.

The effect of this advance in prices upon the labor situation in that locality can not be predicted, say the students of conditions, but it has been announced that there is talk of a speedy meeting of the labor leaders and representatives of the manufacturers.

The Lawrence Board of Aldermen has denounced the One Big Union in that city.

PRICES ADVANCED AT FALL RIVER MILLS

Fall River, May 17.—The cotton market is holding the close attention of cotton and cloth brokers and manufacturers for the reason that the business of the present week has started very steadily. Everything up to October has passed the 20 cent mark.

Manufacturers here are no longer satisfied with the prices that existed a few days ago. Some of them have have already declared that all goods produced by their plants have been marked up a quarter of a cent a yard.

The continued advance in cotton has not surprised the trade here and for this reason the local manufacturers are decided to have their own prices. The mills have cotton on hand purchased at prices considerably lower than those now quoted, but the average supply is not above normal, probably sufficient to last about two or three months.

It was announced following a meeting of the provisional executive committee of the Federated Textile Unions of America that the first convention of that body will take place in New York August 3, 4 and 5. The committee went on record as favoring a 48-hour law in the textile industry. The committee has collected $75,000 for relief work among the operatives now on strikes in New England.

FUNDS DISTRIBUTED AT PAWTUCKET

Pawtucket, R. I., May 17.—Nothing has occurred within the past three days to mar the air of peace and quiet which cloaks the strike situation here. Each morning the mill operatives assemble in Labor Temple and listen to addresses, after which they go to their homes or visit the movies.

The strikers do not seem to be in destitute condition as aid is being dispensed regularly through the treasury of the United Textile Workers of America.

COPPERS RISE ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

After an irregular opening there was price improvement on the Boston exchange and before the morning was over it had become strong. Coppers were leaders in the upward movement. Largest gains for the morning included Calumet & Arizona 1, Isle Royale 1⅛, Ahmeek 2½, Old Dominion 1⅛, Osceola 1⅛, Quincy 1, U. S. Smelting 1⅛, Anaconda 1 and Calumet & Hecla 4, Boston Elevated preferred 1½, New Haven 1, International Cement 1 and Eastern Steamship 1.

Amoskeag dropped 4 to 110, Boston & Maine D 2⅛, Hood Rubber 1½ and New England Telephone 1. In the afternoon trading was broader and more active, while prices moved upward. Calumet & Hecla increased its gain to seven points. Point gains were made by Copper Range, United Fruit, Torrington and Maine Central. Quincy was up 2½ at 47½ in the last hour. International Cotton Mills preferred was down 2 at 71.

CURB MORE ACTIVE.

Trading on the Curb became more active. At the opening the market was strong but it weakened to the extent of becoming irregular. Leaders were Boston & Montana, Crystal and United Verde Extension. Gains at noon included Crystal 1-16 at 1 11-16, United Verde Extension ½ at 29, Radio common ¼ at 5⅝, and Chief ¼ at 4½. Among declines were Boston & Montana 1 cent at 24 cents, Eureka 1 cent at 28 cents and Texana 1 cent at 6 cents. Verde Mines had lost an opening gain of a cent.

Speed Drug Control

Through the vigorous advocacy of the Hearst newspapers, the Miller bill to regulate imports and exports of habit-forming drugs, which long slumbered unheeded in a Congressional pigeonhole, has now passed both branches of the Congress.

It provides, among other things, that control of the entire traffic in narcotics be vested in three members of the Cabinet, who shall permit and regulate manufacture for medicinal purposes only and prevent shipments to or from any country that does not co-operate in suppressing the vice.

So far as immediate law can go, this measure promises an effective check upon the excessive importation of opium and cocaine into this country

It also makes possible adequate international concert to stamp out the dope evil.

Meanwhile there are in the United States upwards of a million drug addicts whose plight is so pitiable as to call for additional action.

Our States need institutions in which drug habitues may receive skilled treatment. A large percentage of them are not criminals, but respectable people who contracted the habit during painful illnesses when physicians, to alleviate unbearable pain, were obliged to administer narcotics. To herd such persons with criminals is indecent and inhuman and ineffective.

To segregate them for a short period as respectable unfortunates who are sick, to treat them as you would treat other victims of disease, is to aid them to recover from the habit and to restore them again to the community in full possession of all their faculties.

Veterans Claim Injustice

According to State Administrator They Must Take Dollar a Day Less Than Regular Wage Scale

The State Administrator has made an interpretation of the Veterans' Preference act which strikes the officials of the State department of the American Legion as being unfair and unjust to war service men seeking State employment.

For instance, regular employes of metropolitan commissions have been receiving $4.25 a day for doing common labor. Extra men needed by these commissions and who do the same kind of work have been offered $3.25 a day.

Of course, veterans have been given the preference for employment under the Veterans' Preference act. They have also been given an additional preference—of working for a dollar a day less than the regular wage scale or loafing, just as they prefer.

It seems that the commissions have not fixed this reduced rate of daily wage, but that it is an order from the State Administrator.

A few months ago former service men who were in dire distress were provided with temporary employment by Governor Cox, in clearing up debris in the Fellsway following a very severe ice storm. For this emergency work they were paid $3.25 a day. Hundreds of veterans accepted this employment at this wage for two reasons: First, they were in absolute need of the money; and, second, they wanted to prove that veterans would rather work than be objects of charity.

Now, it appears, the State Administrator seems to think that, because they accepted $3.25 a day at that time for that work, they should not receive the higher rate for permanent improvements work, notwithstanding the fact that they are called upon to do the same kind and amount of labor for the State commissions that the regular laborers are called upon to do for a dollar a day more.

The officials of the legion would seem to be justified in thinking this is discrimination and taking advantage of veterans' distress, and in asking the Governor to explain to them why war veterans should be called upon to assist in lowering the prevailing rate of wages for common laborers employed by the State.

Wonderful Vigor at 70

Consider Capabilities of Human Body as Exhibited by One of Runners Over Marathon Course

One of our readers has written to us about an editorial published in this column shortly after the Marathon race in which we commented on the extraordinary achievement of the winner who, having won the same race many years before, repeated his victory and bettered his record at an age which is not considered capable of the tremendous physical strain of this race.

Our reader calls our attention to an overlooked feature of the race. He says that a man seventy years old, although not one of the entries, went over the course, and out of seventy odd competitors finished the twenty-six-mile run not far behind the first half of the contestants. We remember the newspaper account of it, and we agree with our reader that it was even more extraordinary than De Mar's victory.

Consider what the human body is capable of doing at seventy years, when a man of that age can run twenty-six miles without stopping in better time than the average youths who competed against him, who must have considered themselves unusually good or they would not have undertaken the race, and who specially trained for it.

The possibilities of men and women to defy the weakening processes of old age are shown to be wonderful by the record which this old gentleman made at the Marathon race.

There can be no doubt that with the discovery of antitoxins for the contagious diseases and with more attention to the benefit of proper eating and selection of foods and the care of the teeth and eyes, we shall not only lengthen the average human life, but shall very greatly lengthen the period of its physical and mental efficiency.

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Whenever Columbus is mentioned as the discoverer of America, many write to say that Ericson, the Norseman, discovered us before Columbus did. Very likely half a dozen men of the North, bold sailors, intentionally or accidentally, came over to this country with the right wind blowing behind them.

Undoubtedly ancestors of our red Indians crossed from Asia centuries before Ericson or Columbus were born.

Many men tried the steamboat before it worked, but Fulton deserves the credit. Columbus is the man that came to this continent, went back and made others come; the credit is his and will remain his.

IF today is the anniversary of your birth you should never be lonely nor despondent, not because you are convivial nor because you will be wealthy, but because you are your own best friend and you do not need money to make you independent.

You ask no greater privilege than to be alone with the gay whirl of your own thoughts, and you have a remarkable sense of detachment which will enable you to be yourself in the noisiest of crowds and in the dreariest of circumstances.

You are original and inventive and never content to follow where others lead. Indeed, you prefer your own course, because it is your own, even if it leads to ruin.

Today is one of particular good fortune for the signing of legal documents, such as wills and contracts.

The next year of your life will bring you material success, but spiritual misery. You should meditate on religious questions. You will be seriously tempted.

A child born today will be original and artistically creative and should be given a careful preliminary training.

HOW DO YOUR EYES LOOK OUT UPON THE WORLD?

By Dr. Charles Fleischer.

(Copyright, 1922, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WHAT was it—accident or mere incident—that changed the whole course of your life?

There is hardly a person who is not, at some time and somehow, influenced to be or to do something different than he set out to be or do. It is a commonplace of experience that our casual conduct is thus affected by others and by circumstance.

What is more particularly referred to herein is the larger fact that our career and our whole being and our "immortal soul" are, in this regard, like the train schedule or the circus bill—subject to change. Your point of view is amazingly susceptible to influences which, apparently at least, do not originate within yourself.

Incidental to conversation about cabbages and kings, peanuts and politicians, bobbed hair and birth control, your friend asks you whether you have read the latest best seller.

The Best Seller

You have not; but you obey the impulse to acquire the book about which "every one" is talking. That night you read it—and, with the first few pages, your point of view undergoes a readjustment.

The world is changed for you, because you look out upon it with different eyes.

Last New Year's Day perhaps you spent the necessary hour with yourself—quite alone in your Holy of Holies—and you took spiritual stock of your inner assets and liabilities. You saw yourself as you were. You made no futile, pie-crust resolutions. But you faced Yourself and determined to increase the assets of your personality.

Your intelligent will since then is changing your life!

A woman sees a play and recognizes herself in the mirror which it holds up to her nature. She perceives the face of folly and never again can she be the same. She now walks the wiser way.

Whatever it is, a trivial circumstance or a world-shaking event, something somehow does happen in practically all lives to bring to pass the commonplace miracle which we call a change of view.

It may be true that the leopard cannot change his spots; but, fortunately, the converse holds true about us. For human nature can be altered, and by a change of your point of view you can and do modify the entire course of your life.

Hope Would Wither

Despite our superficial cynicism, we are deeply convinced of this truth and we believe in its wonder-working potency. Else Hope would wither in our hearts and Vision would fade out of our spirit.

If we are not sure that life depends largely upon our attitude towards it, we would not indulge in good resolutions—whether on New Year's Day or at any other time—we would lose all interest in personal reformation and social progress, and religions would lose their practical excuse for existence.

You may as well win your reason as well as your instinct for this faith in the value of the point of view.

If you want wealth, learn how others gained it—and deserve it by working for it! A new viewpoint may reveal to you the road to riches.

If you are wise and want worth, don't look out, but LOOK IN AND WORK WITHIN YOURSELF.

In that one regard, you are not likely within a single lifetime to knock against the wall of limitation.

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE FOR YOUR NEIGHBORS?

What particular use are you to your city, to your ward, to your particular neighborhood?

How have you benefited the section in which you live?

Your life may be respectable and you may keep your premises attractive.

These are things you are expected to do—any good citizen does.

As a matter of fact, you live as you should because you want the respect of everybody, yourself included, but you keep your premises spic and span because of the pride and satisfaction they give you.

You think that keeping your surroundings up is a personal matter, but it not only benefits you personally, but all who live near you; in fact, all who must pass your door and the city at large.

To have a prosperous city there must be citizens with pride for civic appearance as well as moral character.

What have you done for your neighborhood?

New Boom In Mexico

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Improved internal economic conditions in Mexico are reported to the Department of Commerce by the commercial attache, Alvin Hovey King, at Mexico City.

"Retail and industrial activities are still at a low point in Mexico, but there are recent factors which indicate an easing of the economic tension," says King.

"In the northern States the increased price of silver has stimulated developments in the mining districts, accompanied by some replacement purchases of new equipment. It is understood that plans for extensive improvements and additions are under consideration by some companies.

"Activity in the exploitation of oil properties in the Isthmus of Tehuantepec continues. It is reported that titles of property bought there will be guaranteed by the Department of Industry and Commerce.

"The hard period of the last few months has brought about the closing of firms too weak to stand the pressure, although it is thought that the number of concerns still precariously situated is small.

"Public buying power is still weak. There have been some further reductions in previously high-priced shelf stocks, and new commitments are made subject to very careful estimates of present requirements."

The generally improved economic condition in Mexico is attributed largely to the approaching recognition of Mexico by the United States.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

HEADS up! BRIGADIER-GENERAL RICHARD K. HALE, commander of the 51st Artillery Brigade, is inspecting the Bay State units preparatory to their departure for the camps on their annual tour of duty.

The real Job of the Legislature is REPRESENTATIVE ELMER L. McCULLOCH of Adams. He travels 165 miles to attend a session of the House.

Interested in figures—or taxes? WALTER H. CREAMER says that by reason of the reduction in corporation taxes the State will get only $6,000,000 from that source this year, as compared with $12,000,000 last year and $16,000,000 in 1920.

For the first time in many months the small passageway between the City Council chamber and the executive chamber at City Hall has been free from the great crowds that generally congregate there during council sessions. PATROLMEN "JOE" SMITH and "PAT" LAHEY have done such a good job that persons having business to attend to may navigate with safety.

The many friends of COUNCILLOR JAMES T. MORIARTY believe that he would make an excellent candidate for the position left vacant by the death of JOHN F. STEVENS on the Board of Public Trustees of the Boston Elevated. The only thing standing in his way, they declare, is the fact of the stand he took in favor of the striking police. Those on the inside say that he has the "pole." He is a staunch labor man.

Followers of STANDISH WILLCOX declare that they are "off him for life" when it comes to picking a winner for a race that has the national importance of one held recently. "Stanley" passed the word along that "the wonder horse" hadn't a chance. "By Gosh," he said, when he learned the returns.

How many of the old-timers remember CITY AUDITORS WILLIAM HAYDEN, ELISHA COPELAND and ALFRED T. TURNER? Not many, we'll venture. Mr. Hayden served the city for more than seventeen years, Copeland twenty-three years and Alfred Turner sixteen years. His son, Benjamin Turner, is at present cashier in the city treasurer's office, having been in the city service all his life. Following the above three came JAMES H. DODGE, who donated twenty-three years. J. ALFRED MITCHELL came next with eighteen years, and the present incumbent is RUPERT CARVEN just starting in on the long stretch.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON EFFECTS OF COLORS

By Garrett P. Serviss

AN unusual letter from an artist recalls to mind the remarkable psycho-physical effects of color. It is perfectly possible that in time the harmonic values of color in the production of artistic creations analogous to musical compositions will be availed of in some such way as I fancifully described many years ago in my story of "A Columbus of Space," where great harmonies and hymns of "chromatic music," which had a subtle relation to sound, were represented as being played in the homes of the inhabitants, and in the open air itself, of the planet Venus. There is surely better promise in this than in the "olfactory music" proposed by Dr. Bogert, the chemist.

There is no doubt that many people are extraordinarily responsive, emotionally, to the touch of certain color waves upon the organs of vision. I can still, at the sight of a surface of rich, brilliant yellow, experience the delicious but indescribable feeling that always came to me in boyhood when looking at that color and luxuriating in it.

Colors Cause Emotions

Not all yellows have the same delightful effect, and some, indeed are rather distasteful to me, but just the right one is irresistible. The effect is not an intellectual appreciation; it is purely an emotion. I might almost call it ecstatic. A few other colors produce a similar, but less vivid, impression; for instance, one or two brilliant tones of blue, and some of red. The nature of the impression is like that of musical tones.

It is particularly of red that the letter I have referred to speaks. "My wife," says the writer, "claims that I am color blind because I can't see ripe cherries on a tree if they are more than 300 feet away. In fact, all small objects of a dark red color appear black to me at a distance. I sometimes get too much red in the flesh tints of portraits. But I can see red as well as any other color when both are shown in equal quantities at a reasonable distance.

"Now, I claim I am not color blind, for to my eyes everything appears exactly as it does to a camera. Of various colors having a given value, red affects the sensitive plate the least, and therefore photographs it just as I see it, small specks like cherries becoming mere shadows among the leaves. Why should the color red affect many people just as it does a bull, while it really is the color having the least vitality of them all? Is there anything about red that should affect the eye more than it does the sensitive plate?"

This gentleman would certainly, I think, be rejected as an applicant for the post of locomotive engineer on the ground of color blindness. His ingenious likening of his eyes to photographic plates suggests that detectives will never be able to use photographs for tripping up false witnesses in train collision cases.

On the other hand, if there is a resemblance between the sensitivity of his visual organs, retina, optic nerves, etc., and that of the photographer's emulsions, it may be worth while to experiment upon his possible co-ordinate ability to see, as the sensitized plate does, far beyond the violet end of the spectrum.

Proof of the actual possession of such a power by the human eye would be very interesting and might lead to important disclosures. It might have a bearing on the extraordinary powers of vision by which some of the lower animals are able to see things imperceptible to human eyes.

Concerning the strong effect of red upon many persons, it may be said that there is very likely a similarity, to that extent at least, between the sensitivity of their eyes and that of the eyes of a bull. The effect seems to be somewhat of the nature of a shock, which alone may be enough to account for the arousing of the combative propensities of the bull.

But Taurus is not alone in being powerfully excited by the vibrations of red light. Turkey cocks, if my memory serves me, will chase a red rag, or gobble obstreperously at sight of one, and it is also very effective in arousing the apparent enmity of drakes and ganders, though it often excites terror rather than anger. The evidence seems to be strong that red produces through the nerves of sight an effect analogous to that of a loud, vibrant sound.

Red Has Vitality

It has been suggested that a principal reason for striking impression made by red is because nature has used it so little. This is familiar to artists as one of the principal causes why red holds the first rank as a decorative color. But red surely is not "the color having the least vitality of them all."

It holds its own in artificial illumination better than any other, and it lies at the end of the visual spectrum where the inherent energy of the radiation waves is greatest. Yet in experiments made in France many years ago by the military authorities it was shown that persons wearing red vanished amid the prevailing hues of the landscape at shorter distances than others dressed in colors less striking when seen near by.

EX LIBRIS

By Zoe B. Faber

JUST about once in every so often we are seized with a spell of some sort or other which nothing seems able to cure or even help, except a certain amount of J. M. Barrie. Another of these attacks struck us the other day, and we sat down and once again wandered with a great deal of joy through his "When a Man's Single," written many years ago—in 1896, to be exact. The edition we are fondest of is a soft blue leather binding published by Charles Scribner's Sons.

Are you perhaps just a bit weary of many of the new things which are amusing in a way, but far from humorous in its best sense? Or of other things that are good for you, but weighty? Or of others which are true, hideously true, of present-day life, but too sordid to be pleasant?

Won't you, then, read, or what is even more delightful, reread, the little book of Barrie's that we have on our mind at this moment? We believe there is one thing that can be truthfully said of the Scotchman, and that is that he has as many, if not more, admirers and real lovers than any writer for years and years.

We have for a long time treasured an affection for Rob Angus, and if he isn't on your list of lovable characters in fiction, we would like to have you put him there at an early date.

You have probably seen much of the Barrie genius on the stage in recent years, but don't forget that his stories are just as charming as his plays—but perhaps not quite so well known.
